Cancels A, B and C Gas Coupons In East

OPA ISSUES DRASTIC RULE; OHIO'S UNHIT

FDR Declares Order Will Be Effective on Coast Only Few Days.

AFRICAN NEED CITED

President Says Emergency Call From Front Could Not Be Foreseen.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — Federal Price Administrator Leon Henderson today cancelled all A, B and C gasoline ration coupons along the eastern seaboard until further notice but President Roosevelt gave assurance a short time later that the Henderson order would be effective for only a very few days.

(The cancellation order does not apply to Ohio, but does affect motorists in adjoining Pennsylvania and West Virginia.)

Henderson's action — the most sweeping wartime move yet to hit the American public — was necessary because of an emergency demand for large quantities of motor fuel in North Africa, the president explained at his press conference.

Henderson ordered all gasoline sales except those to commercial vehicles which hold "" coupons suspended at noon, EWT.

An OPA spokesman said that the suspension of A, B and C books may last only a few hours. This official stated that it was possible that the ban on B and C books might be lifted shortly and an original plan to invalidate only A books be placed into effect.

It was apparent that Henderson was intent on saving every drop of gasoline he could for the military. Mr. Roosevelt indicated this when he pointed out that it would take a much longer time to ship gasoline from faraway producing areas to Africa than from storage facilities along the eastern seaboard.

The demand for gasoline for the second front in Africa was a hurry-up order, the president explained. It was something that could not be foreseen, he insisted. He classified the suspension of pleasure driving as a purely temporary measure. He said that he knew the affected

Declare Henderson 'Forced Out'

Mourns Her 'Parapup' Pal

Max, the parapup mascot of the Fort Benning, Ga., parachute infantry regiment, is seen lying near death with a broken jaw and cerebral injury after being hit by an automobile on the camp grounds a few minutes before he was to make his ninth parachute jump. Behind Max broods his Cocker Spaniel "girlfriend," the only dog with which Max was friendly. Camp physicians, after wiring his jaws, gave Max a 50-50 chance to live but doubted if he would ever again jump from transport planes with the regular paratroopers.

CONGRESSMEN REVEAL FARM BLOC 'DEAL'

Sen. Prentiss Brown Slated To Take Over Post as Price Administrator.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON — An administration deal with the congressional farm bloc, which threatened otherwise to wreck the anti-inflation program, forced Price Administrator Leon Henderson to resign, congressional sources said today.

It was a four-play deal, in which congress held all the high cards, and climaxes a long, bitter feud between President Roosevelt and the farm bloc. On the basis of current information the farm bloc has won a substantial victory.

Sen. Prentiss M. Brown, (D., Mich.) defeated for re-election last month, is expected to succeed Henderson. He is a strong administration supporter who steered the anti-inflation bill through the senate, but will be far more acceptable to congress than Henderson.

Congressional sources said the farm bloc was ready—and has the votes in the new congress—to jam through a bill that would force the administration to include all of the costs of farm labor, including that of the farmer and his family, in the computation of farm parity prices. That would send food prices skyrocketing and wreck the president's anti-inflation program.

Thus, with Brown acting as go-between with Secretary of Agriculture Claude R. Wickard and the farm bloc, the administration bought off congress. In return for agreement among farm bloc leaders to drop the wage-cost bill, the administration agreed to:

1. Remove Henderson as OPA administrator.
2. Permit moderate increases in ceiling prices on farm products.
3. Scrap its farm subsidy program, a pet Henderson idea.
4. An as yet undisclosed condition.

Wickard was said to have closed the deal late yesterday afternoon. He flashed the word to the White

Ship Survivors Save Selves

An auxiliary naval vessel (top photo) is seen jammed to the gunwales with army men rescued from the former luxury liner President Coolidge which went down within sight of shore after striking a mine "presumably in" the Solomon island area." British Strike Toward Tripoli On Axis Heels

Part of Army Presses In on Trapped Rommel Tanks, 10,000 Men In Area Near Matratin; Allied Planes Sweep Whole Tunisia Front.

(By Associated Press)

Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's British Eighth army struck swiftly on toward Tripoli today in a fighting pursuit, hot on the heels of the last of the German and Italian army in Libya southwest of Zauta En Nofilia, 100 miles beyond the broken El Agheila line.

Other British forces pressed in for a knockout of perhaps 10,000 of Rommel's African corps survivors and half of his tanks which were caught and held in the desert trap between Marble Arch airfield and Matratin gulch.

Matratin is 65 miles west of El Agheila. Thus the corridor between the trap and the fleeing Axis remnant west of Zauta En Nofilia has widened to more than 35 miles.

"The extent of the damage inflicted on the enemy in the area between Marble Arch and Wadi Matratin is not yet known," a Cairo communique declared.

Over the whole vital Tunisian front some 700 miles to the west, Allied fighters and bombers ranged with rising power and declining losses as Axis attempts at interception weakened perceptibly.

The Morocco radio broadcast what it said was a French North African communique reporting that French forces fighting on the side of the Allies had occupied an important point in Tunisia.

On the Russian central front Red army shock troops drove into another village along the Rzhev-Vyazma rail line, a Moscow communique reported. The Russians said Toropets was well behind their lines, and indicated that a strong force from this sector was moving south in sharp menace to the main Nazi base at Smolensk, 230 miles from Moscow.

The RAF sent its bombers over northwestern Germany again last night, apparently in considerable force. The British announced the loss of 18 of the raiders; the Germans claimed 21 shot down.

The bridge of shipping which the Axis was attempting to establish across the narrow mid-Mediterranean straits was running into ever-increasing losses. The admiralty announced in London that three more of the supply ships had been damaged and probably sunk by British submarine attacks.

The Axis had not yet told its people of the costly consequences of Rommel's flight from El Agheila.

The Italian high command said attempts to encircle Axis forces west of El Agheila had failed—meaning presumably that some got away. The German high command said the withdrawal was "proceeding systematically despite attacks by British tank forces to disturb Axis movements by continuous attacks into the flank of the Axis army."

Air power weighed steadily

CAN MATINEE ON TOMORROW

Fruit or Vegetables To Be Price of Admission at Ohio.

One can of fruit or vegetables will admit any boy, girl or adult to the canned goods matinee to be held Saturday at 10 a. m. at the Ohio theater to help fill Christmas baskets for distribution among Mansfield's needy.

Either products from the grocers' shelves or home-canned articles will be acceptable as the price of admission, Grattan Johnston, theater manager, said.

A special film bill has been booked for the matinee headed by "Pride of the Blue Grass," starring Bonita Granville. Two cartoons, Bugs Bunny and Porky Pig, and a comedy will complete the program.

POSTOFFICE TO EXTEND HOURS

Department To Be Open Until 7 P. M. Tomorrow, 3 Days of Christmas Week.

To accommodate the Christmas mailing rush at the Mansfield postoffice all windows including Stamp, parcel post, money order and registry, will remain open Saturday until 7 p. m. instead of closing at noon as is the usual procedure on Saturday.

Although the peak of the mailing season will not be reached before Monday or Tuesday, Postmaster Herman E. Homberger said today, that the number of out-going packages and greetings cards far surpasses that of last year. Stamp receipts in the five-day period, Dec. 13-17, were increased $2,982 over the corresponding period last year.

Postoffice windows will also remain open each day next week, Monday through Wednesday, until 7 p. m. for the convenience of patrons. A second parcel post window opened Wednesday to facilitate the handling of packages.

Help in both the mailing department and delivery service has been supplemented by approximately 50 workers, Homberger said. By next week there will be 22 extra clerks in the mailing department and 27 carriers and assistants on the delivery routes including truck service.

Two extra trucks furnished by the highway department will augment the postoffice fleet next week.

CITY DIGS OUT OF SNOWSTORM

Snowplows Work All Night To Keep Streets, Roads Open; It'll Be Colder.

Snow plow crews were digging Mansfield and Richland county out of the ice last night and today after the worst snowstorm of the season struck at noon yesterday, accompanied by wind and rising temperature, with rain the early part of the night adding to traffic hazards.

Throughout yesterday afternoon and night, street department crews under Superintendent Charles Hebel spread more than 20 tons of salt and cinders on danger spots and traveled hills, a like quantity being placed today.

Many householders cleared sidewalks last night in pursuance of a city ordinance providing penalty for property owners who fail to do so by 9 a. m. following a snowfall. Demands by George C. Kyle, councilman-at-large, that the city start cleaning streets and sidewalks when the snow began drifting yesterday attracted caustic and pointed comment from Hebel and Service Director Fred B. Wolff.

Few accidents were reported, motor traffic being held to a minimum and pedestrian travel virtually vanishing after the shopping hours. Drifts prevented accurate measurements by Weather Observer Albert Sprunger who estimated the snowfall at three to five inches with 23 inch of SAN DIEGO, Calif.—(AP)—Capt. F. J. Mix, jr., Rochester, N. Y., claimed a new marching record today for his company of marine parachutists.

More than 150 leathernecks completed an overnight, forced march of 45 miles in 11 hours, 35 minutes. Only six fell out, Mix said.

'JUST A CHAT'

Bricker Says Power's Trip Has No Political Import.

COLUMBUS — (AP) — Gov. John W. Bricker said today that while Don Power, his secretary, did "not go to Washington on any political mission, it was possible he might talk some politics."

"You can't help discussing politics in Washington because the place is full of it," the governor remarked.

Power arrived in Washington yesterday and announced publicly he was there only for personal visits and a chat with Sen. Robert A. Taft. The senator announced recently he would not be a candidate for the Republican presidential nomination and instead would lend his full support to Bricker.

STRANGLE: Allies Tightening Lines on Japs' Last-Man Stand

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON—(U.P.)—Army Flying Fortresses, accompanied by cannon-firing Airacobra fighters, attacked the Japanese base at Munda on New Georgia island in the Solomons for the seventh consecutive day of raids in that area, the navy announced today.

(By Associated Press)

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA—Japanese cornered in pockets about Buna village continued their last man, last ditch stand today and even offered attacks at two points in the New Guinea battle area, but a headquarters communique said "our lines are gradually closing in, in the face of strong enemy resistance."

The Australian and American troops who had backed the Japanese to the sea were faced with the problem of driving them out of the Buna government station, from a cocoanut grove south of the station, and from a sand spit and mangrove island seven miles north of Buna.

Allied guns smashed a bridge leading to the government station. When the Allied troops came to the grove the Japanese laid down a barrage of mortar shells and then vainly tried to counter-attack, losing 20 dead and one taken prisoner.

Another Japanese force attempted to repeat infiltration tactics west of Gona. Australians there killed 15 and took one Japanese prisoner, dispatches from the front said.

Allied planes strafed another group of Japanese on the mangrove isle and the communique said that enemy refugees in the Kumusi delta were bombed.

SECRET WEAPON: U. S. Gun Turns Tide of Desert Battle

(Editor's Note — A secret weapon, conceived by an American and made in American factories, turned the tide against the German Afrika Korps in Egypt. Richard D. McMillan, United Press desert war correspondent writes in the following dispatch. McMillan has just arrived in New York by air. He has received permission from the chief military censor at Cairo to tell the part that the weapon played in the Allied victory.)

By RICHARD D. M'MILLAN
(UP Staff Correspondent)
(Copyright, 1942, United Press)

NEW YORK—The biggest surprise of the war came to the Germans one day along the El Alamein front when there was a series of terrific flashes and big armor-piercing shells ripped and withered the Nazi panzer divisions.

An American secret weapon, destined to turn the tide of battle in the desert, had gone into action for the first time.

Marshal Erwin Rommel was on the approaches to Alexandria, and the British Eighth army held a narrow front between the Mediterranean and a large Marsh when the new weapon was thrown into the battle. It is a powerful-hitting, self-propelling anti-tank gun mounted on the chassis of a General Grant tank.

It was hastily manufactured in the United States and was shipped to the Middle East with such secrecy that few officers or men in the Eighth army knew of its existence until the night before Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery opened his El Alamein offensive.

That night they were moved quickly up to the front lines. British and New Zealand gunners had been especially trained to operate the guns at stations miles

Plant Gives $775 For Yule Baskets; Grocer Aids 300

A Mansfield industry played Santa Claus today to the Give-A-Christmas program by "adopting" 150 families for holiday dinners.

The Dominion Electrical Manufacturing company tendered a $625 check to the Salvation Army to cover the cost of 125 baskets and a $150 check to the Volunteers of America to supply 25 baskets, Adjutant Paul Hoffman said.

The gift, presented by Ben Shaffer, Dominion president, and Nathan Lifson, treasurer, made it possible to supply all but 40 of the 165 families remaining on the Salvation Army Clearing House list of 300.

Capt. R. L. Gutterman of the Volunteers said the contribution to his organization will fill 25 of the 40 baskets which it planned to contribute.

The remaining 40 families on the Salvation Army list will be supplied by the Salvation Army in the event they are not adopted

HUNT ENDS

Sportsmen Bag Three 'Wild' Heifers at Chardon.

CHARDON — (AP) — Chardon's two day heifer hunt was over, and now there are 1,200 pounds of beef on the market here.

Three heifers several weeks ago wandered away from the Holstein herd of John Geil, Hambden farmer, and defied capture. A party of Chardon sportsmen paid Geil for the animals, then set out Wednesday on a "big-game" hunt.

The heifers eluded the huntsmen that day, but yesterday the quarry was bagged after a chase of several hours. The animals were dressed on the spot by a butcher.

"It was more sport than deer hunting," declared Glenn Wilder, Chardon real estate agent and a member of the party. "These heifers were game. One of them took three bullets before it went down. I never saw a deer do that."

STOCKHOLM—(U.P.)—A Lisbon dispatch of the newspaper Allehanda said today that Prime Minister Winston Churchill had left for Washington to confer with President Roosevelt on French colonies.

RAISES MILK PRICE

CLEVELAND—(AP)—The Office of Price Administration ordered retail and wholesale prices of milk in Hicksville, Defiance county, increased one cent a quart to stop diversion of milk to areas where higher prices are paid. The new ceiling is 11 cents a quart retail and 9 cents wholesale.

GETS MEDAL

Willkie Honored For Aiding Christian-Jewish Accord.

NEW YORK—(U.P.)—Wendell L. Willkie criticized use of the word "tolerance" as an "assumption of superiority" last night, in a speech accepting the American Hebrew medal for his work in promoting better understanding between Christians and Jews in the United States.

A committee of judges, which included President Roosevelt, former Gov. Lehman of New York and Mayor Fiorello H. La Guardia, awarded the medal.

Mr. Roosevelt said he cast his vote for Willkie "because he is working consistently throughout this war and in other nations for tolerance and better understanding."

Move to Close Stores Over Holiday Week-End Under Way

A prolonged Christmas holiday was in store for at least a portion of Mansfield sales clerks today when it became known that one large department store and possibly a second would close its doors Christmas eve at 6 p. m., not to open until Monday at 9 a. m.

The movement to remain closed the Saturday after Christmas is now underway in numerous Ohio cities following a similar trend in Ft. Wayne, Chicago and Detroit. Retail establishments in these three cities will close the Saturday after Christmas and likely the Saturday after New Year day.

In Mansfield, the H. L. Reed department store will give its clerks a prolonged Christmas holiday, John W. Cook, vice president of the company, said, while the R. B. Maxwell company has also indicated its intention of closing.

The Mansfield Retail Merchants' association has made no recommendation to local retailers, V. H. Lodde, secretary, said, although a survey of stores is to be made the early part of next week to determine the number that will remain open on the Saturday after Christmas.

Members of the Retail Merchant's association in Dayton and of the retail council in Springfield have agreed to close their stores from Thursday night, Dec. 24, until Monday noon, Dec. 28.

The Saturdays after Christmas and New Year day aren't usually good business days," C. E. Dittmer, assistant director of the Ohio State Council of Retail Merchants explained.

DINA CASHMAN + + +

By Kathleen Norris

(Copyright, 1942.)

CHAPTER XIII

A moment later in her triumphant progress Aline Havens came abruptly upon the girl in the flower-splashed gown, stopped short.

"Miss Cashman, Aline. Geraldine, this is Mrs. Havens.

Dina rose; her eyes were wide and dark, her face pale. She looked younger even than her years, startled, shy, naive.

"Geraldine what, d a r l i n g?" Aline demanded.

"Cashman."

"OH?" Aline looked at him, looked at Dina for explanations. "Do I know her; do I know her people?" she asked.

"I don't think so. She's by way of being a ward of mine for the time being," Rogers said.

"A ward? Staying with you? But how very nice," Aline commented sweetly.

"Not staying with me. No; I'm under orders to send her home at half-past ten," Rogers answered amiably. "Was it half-past ten, Geraldine?" he asked.

"About then," the girl confirmed it simply.

"Although, since that perfumed little garbage barrel you call your mind jumped so quickly at conclusions, Aline," the man added, "I may say that I think Bucket would be equal to the situation even if Miss Cashman were my house guest."

"In school?" Aline asked Dina after an exchange of some low-toned pleasantries at Rogers' expense, upon the part of one or two of the onlookers, that she did not follow and at which everyone laughed maliciously.

"No."

"Just visiting California?"

It was cross-examination; he had warned her it would come But surprisingly Dina found herself rather enjoying it.

"No. Not visiting," she answered thoughtfully and slowly.

"Try the red-hot p i n c e r s, Aline," Rogers said. "Try the iron maiden. You can make her talk!"

Dina turned dutiful eyes toward him.

"Should I talk?"

Rogers smiled; he came over to stand beside her. Aline had sunk gracefully into the chair Dina had vacated, and the girl was standing before her as if under inspection. But to have the man join her changed the situation and gave her the advantage again.

"You know very well you shouldn't talk," he told her.

"I seem to feel mystery and intrigue in the air," Aline said. "You're not Mata Hari, I suppose?" she said lazily to Dina.

Dina had seen Mati Hari in a movie. But she wasn't quite sure of the answer to this, and her startled eyes went to Rogers with an effect better than anything for which he might have hoped.

"No," he answered. "She's not Mata Hari."

"Come over here and talk to me, Miss Cashman," old Mrs. Prince said authoritatively at this point. She patted the sofa seat beside her with a puffy, ringed hand. "I like pretty people," she added. "Tell me all about yourself!"

This was a large order and infinitely alarming to Dina. But she had been bred in the hard school of having to please marketing women; she knew instantly what was Mrs. Prince's favorite topic of conversation and could find her way to it.

"They're beautiful," she said as she sat down.

The old lady's eyes followed Dina's to the onyx and pearl bracelet that encircled her soft, old, fat arm.

"They're old-fashioned," she said. "But I won't have 'em changed. They were my mother's."

"Oh, I wouldn't change them!" Dina protested. "Because what would you get for them?" she was going to add. Fortunately she stopped in time.

"Everybody's always for having everything reset," Mrs. Prince complained. "I think it's ridiculous. My mother was a Belknap of Virginia; she was raised like a princess. She had a young mammy when she was nothing but a baby, and that same mammy—Mammy Sula, they called her; I remember her well — was with my mother when she closed her eyes. There wasn't a day of my mother's life—"

After about ten minutes she paused for breath, and Dina said respectfully: "It sounds like a book."

"I could give you stories—wish I had time to write 'em — my cousin Missy-Lou Cromartie's just had a book published—calls it "Faithful to the Gray," said Mrs. Prince.

Again Dina listened. She could have gone on thankfully listening for hours. It was so safe, sitting here on the wide divan and letting the dinner party ebb and flow about her!

A man or two joined them — one a very old man who listened attentively to everything old Mrs. Prince said and now and then commented with a reminiscent dry chuckle and an appreciative Remember it perfectly, Lily!" The other was the vapid-looking youth who was shortly to marry Miss Mary Louise Ledyard.

"Geraldine, will you sit at the head?" Rogers said as they went out to dinner. Dina gave him a glance of wild appeal, but she had no choice. He sat at one end of the long table, and she found herself enthroned opposite to him.

Fortunately for her, the man on her right assumed immediate control of the conversation. He was an impeccably handsome and well-groomed person of perhaps 50 whose life was spent on the polo field, at the bridge table, at formal dinners, on the golf course or tennis courts, at Palm Beach or at Easthampton as the season indicated.

He knew a great many famous persons in society, in New York's literary and dramatic circle, and in Hollywood, and he had a great many delightful anecdotes of them to relate—all of them flattering, kindly, and innocnous.

Dina need feed him only the compliment of her bright-eyed interest and an occasional "Oh, tell me about her!" to keep him content and avoid any of the silences she so dreaded. He was rapturously describing the dove shooting at Pasa Robles when the woman on his other side suddenly engrossed him by the simple method of saying, "Reggie, stop talking to Miss Cashman and pay some attention to me. After all, you and I were compromised once, at Violet's, remember? Remember how awful that was? That ought to give me some rights!"

Reggie almost instantly obeying this command, Dina found herself for a moment ignored, she leaned back in her enormous chair, surveyed the brilliant scene, and told herself that she would serve Rogers' purpose just as well in silence as in any other way. He had not asked her to make any of them like her.

"Are you trying to think of something to say? I am," said the man a ther left. Dina turned with a quick smile and found him to be Andrew Havens, the bridegroom who was the quite unconscious cause of her being here at all.

"Well, I wasn't," she said; "but if you can't, I could try."

He laughed, and they brought their heads a little nearer.

"I'm really very shy," he confessed, "and I know the cure for it, too."

"I wish I did!" Dina said.

"I never get up courage to use it," the man continued. "It's just to get on top of itself, if you know what I mean. Just to say, 'Oh heck, everyone's shy and someone has to talk!' Then you just rattle along saying everything that comes into your head, and that starts the others, and the first thing you know they think you're a social asset."

"And what's that?" Dina asked, liking him at once.

"A social asset? A person everybody likes and invites places. Just from what I heard I should think that man on your other side was one."

"Mr. Tegbury? He might well be."

"Then you don't know him?"

"I've never met any of these people until tonight. Except Mr. Holland, of course."

"You haven't, and I thought you knew them all and all the fathers and mothers knew yours."

"Oh, no!" Dina was conscious of a little inward shiver as she reflected upon the impression that the Cashman family would make should it suddenly be introduced into this stately dining room.

"I know my wife didn't know you, for she took me aside before dinner and cross-examined me," Andrew Havens said simply. "She told me to find out all about you."

"You wouldn't find it very interesting," Dina told him. "Isn't she beautiful?" she asked, glancing down the table to look at Aline.

"Yes," the husband said, his eyes filled with adoration. "She is the most beautiful woman I've ever seen. And the lovely part of it is," he went on, "that inside, in her nature, in her heart, she is just as beautiful. Sweetness—you never saw anything like it! Servants adore her; she'll stop in the street to speak to some poor little waif of a child. She's had very little happiness in her life," he went on, his eyes shining, "and — and we're very happy now," he finished shyly:

"I think Mr. Holland said you're staying at a place at Los Altos?"

Sport Podge

by REX HESS

This should be labeled "Continued from yesterday." It's a bit more dope on Massillon's war-time step-down from big time football.

The complete Tiger grid schedule for next fall, I now learn, will include games with: Canton Lincoln, Akron West, Steubenville, Alliance, Mansfield, Warren, Canton Timken, Youngstown Rayen and Canton McKinley.

Dropped are Weirton, W. Va., always a tough customer, Erie (Pa.) East, another toughie, Cleveland Cathedral Latin which annually took a big reputation to Massillon and lost it there, Toledo Waite, and the usual big intersectional game.

Well, that's a schedule that won't take much traveling either to or fro. Whether it will fill the Massillon stadium in the manner to which it has become accustomed is another question. And after the war it will be the necessity of filling that stadium that will force Massillon back into the big time.

Meanwhile Massillon may have trouble ruling the roost in its own backyard. That Lincoln is no push-over, and neither is Steubenville or Canton McKinley.

The Tiger's claws were trimmed, for sure,
When the Bulldog gave him a pedicure.
(McKinley 35, Massillon 0. And don't you ever forget it.)

The new backyard policy in schedule making at Massillon is cheered at Canton as a step toward deciding a real Stark county championship in football and basketball. Massillon also has booked Timken and Lincoln in the cage sport.

And Jack Maxwell, in the Canton Repository, points out that McKinley is no longer THE school in Canton, and that McKinley is beginning to realize the fact, to its own benefit.

Says Maxwell:

"After several years in which they shut their ears to the din created by city rivals, McKinley athletes, student and adult fans have come to the realization that they must fight to retain local supremacy, and there's every reason to believe the Bulldogs henceforth will be tough customers to deal with.

"The scoreless deadlock with Lincoln early in the fall marked a turning point for McKinley, and for the last half of the football season the school showed more real spirit and backed its team more enthusiastically than at any time in the 25 years of its existence."

And, of course, McKinley can't forget that it lost the city basketball title to Timken on a 31-27 setback in 1940-41, while wining the county championship from such teams as Alliance and Massillon.

PRO GRIDDERS CAN KEEP ON SAYS LAYDEN

CHICAGO—(NS)—The final word on professional football that some have predicted if the club owners will search the sandlots and semi-pro teams for material, Elmer Layden, commissioner of professional football, declared today.

"In the past professional football teams have had stars tossed into their laps," he said. "Now it's up to us to get out and dig for the talent which is there if we'll look for it."

Ohio Sport Tourneys Cut In '43

Scholastic Golf Events Have Playing Chance.

By FRITZ HOWELL

COLUMBUS—(AP)—No gas—no golf! No tires—no tournaments! No shells—no shooting!

That's the outlook for sports-minded Ohio for 1943, a quick glance at the big-time tournament picture indicated today. And few changes are expected until peace dawns.

Ohio's first major sports casualty in the war was the national rifle matches—the three-week bullet barrage along Lake Erie—called off this year as the more than 2,000 contestants from all the states and possessions and armed services had more serious shooting to do.

There's an outside chance that the Ohio conference and state high school golf tournaments will be held in 1943, but practically all the other fixtures will be called off for the duration.

The Ohio Golf association announced today that if gasoline and tire rationing are still in effect, it will not hold the senior, junior and state amateur tournaments. The state public links events, for both men and women, also will be erased.

Toledo Inverness' colorful four-ball matches, probably will be abandoned as a result of the tournament clamped down by the P. G. A. and the U. S. G. A. The Mahoning Valley Open, too, will be washed away.

The Ohio Open tournament, sponsored by the state P. G. A., is off the books for the duration, as is the state women's championship.

Another major loss probably will be the Grand American Trapshoot at Vandalia. Indications are there will not be enough 12-gauge shells available for a 1943 event. The Ohio State trapshooting tournament probably will follow the "Roaring Grand" in the discard for the duration.

Lack of shells also will put a crimp in club shooting, just as a scarcity of balls and clubs will hamper the home-course golfers. More than a score of Ohio golf clubs have decided not to reopen their courses in the spring, indicating revenue would not finance upkeep.

League bowling is not expected to suffer, but the A. B. C. at Buffalo has been called off. The state women's bowling meet at Canton hasn't been called off, but travel restrictions are expected to cut the entry list. The Inter-City and Ohio Moose tournaments at Mansfield are still on the schedule.

* * *

Big league baseball, and the American association, are expected to carry on as usual, but the Mid-Atlantic loop may curtail activities if it doesn't fold altogether. College and high school sports are due for a cutdown, and 1943 schedules in all scholastic sports are being revamped to slash traveling to a minimum.

Tunis, the capital of Tunisia, is ten miles south of the ancient harbor of Carthage.

BOB SHAW LEADS IN MAJOR CAGE SCORING

CHICAGO—(AP)—Versatile Bob Shaw, Ohio State's star center, has scored 39 points in two games to take the top spot among major midwest basketball scorers this week.

Shaw, who won All-America honors this year for his play at end for the Buckeyes, has contributed 15 field goals and nine free throws for an average of 19 points a game. His total was two more than Wisconsin's Johnny Kotz.

Rams Win In Overtime Tilt

Edge Butler Bulldogs, 33-29, at Madison.

Madison Rams were forced into overtime play last night to edge the surprising Butler Bulldogs in a non-league game at Madison 33-29.

Paced by Bill Hoover's sharp-shooting, Butler overcame a 15-3 lead marked up by the Rams in the first quarter, and took a 25-23 margin at the end of the third stanza. Madison still led at the half, 17-12, scoring only two points in the second period.

After a slow start it was all Madison in the opening session. After Harold Hammer opened the scoring with a onehander from the side, the Forbes brothers, Dwain and Bob, marked up three points for Butler on free shots. Then Madison jumped the count to 15-3 on seven points by Hammer, and two each by Bader, Gross and Wynn.

A free shot by Wynn and another by Hammer constituted the Madison total for the second period, while Hoover got six and D. Forbes 3 for Butler.

Madison boosted the score to 20-16 early in the third quarter and then Butler closed in. D. Forbes tallied on a side pivot and Hoover on a fast break to tie the score at 20-20, while a free shot by R. Forbes and another fast break bucket by Hoover put Butler ahead 23-20. A free shot by Hammer and a long one by Wynn tied the score again, but Hoover also sank a long shot to give Butler a 25-23 lead at the end of the period.

Poston tied it up with an under-bucket shot, but Beal gave Butler the lead again on a long shot. Poston got a free toss. Hoover made it 29-27 with a long shot from the side. Hammer scored on a pivot play, and with seconds remaining, Poston tied the score 29-29 with a free shot.

In the overtime Gross sank a long shot and Wynn tallied from the circle. The two teams meet at Butler Jan. 15 in the county league game.

In the preliminary game Mansfield high school sophomores defeated the Madison Reserves 30-17, leading 8-4 at the quarter, 15-9 at the half and 22-9 at the third quarter.

Sport Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

NEW YORK—(AP)—In his latest blast at football for service men, Gene Tunney remarked, "I never played football, and I had the warrior psychology." . . . That doesn't sound like the warrior whose object in boxing was to make enough money to quit the fight game and "settle down to a normal life." . . . We suspect that some of Gene's objections come from those first four words—"I never played football." . . . If he had, he might understand the psychology that makes a guy put in a couple of hours on the gridiron after a full day of army or navy training.

TODAY'S GUEST STAR.

Doug Vaughan, Windsor (Ont.) Daily Star: "True sport as we know it has its part to play in this troubled and periled world of ours. It is a big part, too, but still only a supporting role. Most of our soldiers of today are better soldiers because their minds had been made the more alert, their bodies the better equipped to stand the rigors of war by a life-long love of and participation in athletics."

SERVICE DEPT.

Getting ready for a tussle with Gil Dodds in the Sugar Bowl mile race, Ensign Walter Mehl of the Iowa Navy Pre-Flight school not only gave up his noon hour to practice, but he rakes and marks the track himself before each workout. . . . After seeing his weight drop from 210 pounds to 188 in a month at Camp White, Ore., baseball scout Art Parker reached this conclusion: "If a baseball club had the training we do, it could get in first-class shape for the season in about two weeks."

CLEANING THE CUFF.

Billy Herman already has signed his 1943 contract with the Dodgers at the same salary he got this year. . . . Art Dehnert, son of the inventor of the pivot play, is a candidate for the Columbia basketball team but doesn't figure to get a regular place.

Tygers Meet Willard Quint

Mansfield High Cagers Seek Initial Victory.

Still seeking their first victory of the basketball season, Mansfield high school's Tygers tangle with Willard tonight at the senior high gym, and prospects for turning in that initial victory look good.

Willard was edged out in the last minute of play by one point at Crestline last week, and Crestline later defeated Madison by three points, which just about puts Willard in a class with the Rams.

* * *

Whether the Tygers can defeat a team of the Ram class will be discovered tonight. Mansfield Mentor Vern Hoffman isn't expecting an easy conquest. From the tall Willard team which performed creditably in the district tournament last spring, there are three seniors returning for the nucleous of this year's quintet, which also includes one junior and one sophomore.

Still shifting his lineup around in an effort to find a winning combination, Hoffman has been working his Tyger squad in units of three teams this week.

One one team Hoffman has Andy Lameraux and Bob Baker at forwards, Bill Snowden at center, and the Myers brothers, Doug and Les, at guards. This team probably will start tonight's game.

Another quintet has Jim Robertson and Dean Hahn at forwards, Jim Burrage at center, and Brunk and McBride at guards, while a third team has Crownover and Foster at forwards, Bill Lewis at center, and Nixon and Radio at guards.

* * *

Mansfield's sophomore team fresh from a 30-17 victory over Madison reserves, meet Perrysville in the preliminary game tonight at 7 o'clock, with the big game booked at 8:15.

Bee Gees Get Seventh Win

Ashland Defeats Camp Perry and Gerber.

(By Associated Press)

Bowling Green State university's high scoring cage machine, boasting a season record of seven wins and no defeats, held a solid lead in the Ohio collegiate basketball race today.

The Bee-Gees, maintaining a point-and-a-half-a-minute pace, downed Wayne University of Detroit, 64-41, at Bowling Green last night to increase their leadership margin. Their nearest competitors—Toledo and Youngstown—have won four and lost none.

Freshman Forward Wyndol Gray again paced Bowling Green's attack, the Akron hot-shot spanking in 25 for a stronger hold on the individual scoring leadership, making him 162 tallies in six contests. Next in the point chase is Youngstown's Leo Mogus with 115.

In the night's best thriller, Ohio Northern was forced to come from behind in an overtime period to defeat Heidelberg's Student Prices 49 to 48 at Tiffin.

Bob Gerber, former Toledo University cage great, returned to the Buckeye basketball scene last night, playing with a quintet from Camp Perry against Ashland. Gerber dumped in five field goals, but his squad lost 43 to 38.

Mount Union beat visiting Kent State 51-35; Defiance topped Hillsdale of Michigan 50-41; Earlham (Ind.) edged Wilmington 49-45; Fort Knox beat Xavier 51-24; and Ball State handed Miami a 44-37 licking at Muncie, Ind.

LANDIS RULES ON BRYANT FREE AGENCY

CHICAGO — (AP) — Baseball Commissioner Kenesaw Mountain Landis, in a decision involving a Mid-Atlantic league pitcher, today reminded major league clubs they could not under working agreements with minor league farms sell a player and still own him.

Landis included the reminder in a formal decision on Clay Bryant, co-hero of the Chicago Cubs' 1939 pennant drive. The Cubs prevented Zanesville from giving the pitcher his unconditional release and ordered him sold to another farm, Macon, Ga., for $100. Landis declared Bryant a free agent two weeks ago.

Tribe, Yanks Trade Players

Weak Spots on Both Teams Strengthened.

By AUSTIN BEALMEAR

NEW YORK—(AP)—The American league's first player trade since the 1942 baseball season ended left the New York Yankees and Cleveland Indians both better fortified today for the 1943 pennant race—if any.

* * *

The deal, announced yesterday by President Ed Barrow of the Yankees, sent Catcher Buddy Rosar and Outfielder Roy Cullenbine to the Indians for Outfielder Roy Weatherly and Oscar Grimes, an infield handyman.

There was no cash involved. It also was an even swap from the standpoint of the military draft, all four players being classified 3-A.

Observers labeled the transaction the perfect trade, since it fills weak spots on both teams. Also, with Weatherly teaming up with Joe DiMaggio and Charley Keller, it may give the Yankees the fastest outfield in the league.

Grimes, however, appeared to be the key man in the deal for the Yankees, who need infield insurance now that Phil Rizzuto is in the navy, Red Rolfe is at Yale as a coach, Buddy Hassett is reported headed for the armed forces, and Frank Crosetti is under suspension for the first 30 days of the 1943 season.

An all-around infielder, Grimes has played all four positions since he joined the Indians in 1938. He batted .179 in 51 games last season.

Rosar appeared to be the key man on the Cleveland side of the deal. The Indians were badly in need of a catcher.

SOLDIERS READ QUALITY BOOKS

Non-Fiction Dealing With War Popular With Army Men At Fort Warren.

FT. WARREN, Wyo.—(INS)—Pert Miss Eloise Ebert, post librarian for the U. S. army quartermaster troops, stationed at Ft. Warren, doesn't even raise an eyebrow when soldiers come in with requests for Spengler's "Decline of the West," or a treatise on Sanskrit grammar.

"Of course fiction reading leads all other kinds," said Miss Ebert, but it must be good fiction. Demands vary from books like "The Last Time I Saw Paris" to Tolstoy's "War and Peace."

The non-fiction books that are popular are in the main books dealing with philosophy and the war, such as "Victory Through Air Power" and "Men on Bataan." A great many technical books are borrowed, as many of the men stationed at Ft. Warren, are specialists going to various schools in the QMRTC, Miss Ebert stated.

"I don't know about the last war, but if anyone thinks that the present-day soldier isn't interested in reading—and I mean good reading, he should visit our 7,000 volume library," Miss Ebert said. "I think too that the average army man is just as well informed as the average civilian and has about the same taste in books—but of course doesn't get as much opportunity to read as civilians do."

THEATERS

Aerial Thriller.

"Flying Fortress," an aerial thriller of the planes that carry battle to the enemy opens at the Ohio tomorrow with Richard Greene in the leading role. Carla Lehmann is also in the cast. A new March of Time subject supplements the bill. "Springtime in the Rockies," the technicolor film starring Betty Grable, John Payne, Carmen Miranda and Harry James and His Music Makers, continues today.

Horror Bill.

A double-header horror bill is in store for Madison patrons beginning Saturday when two Universal thrillers, "Night Monster," featuring Bela Lugosi and Lionel Atwill, and "Mummy's Tomb" with Lon Chaney, jr., begin a four-day run. "Night Monster," deals with a series of gruesome murders and a strange assembly of suspects. Irene Hervey and Don Porter supply the romantic note. Chaney assumes the fearsome guise of an ancient Egyptian mummy who sets the countryside in an uproar in the second attraction, "Mummy's Tomb."

Western Drama.

A political campaign in the wide spaces inspires gun play in Johnny Mack Brown's starring picture, "The Silver Bullet," opening at the Ritz today. William Farnum plays the hometowner who is campaigning for state senate against a crooked incumbent. Fuzzy Knight and Jennifer Holt are among the players. "Murder at the Baskervilles," the co-feature, presents the English actor, Arthur Wontner in the role of Sherlock Holmes.

Roach Comedy.

The cast that appeared in Hal Roach's "Tanks a Million," is now playing in another Roach comedy of camp life, "Hay Foot," showing at the Park. William Tracy and Joe Sawyer carry leading roles and James Gleason, Elyse Knox and Noah Berry, jr., are among the players. The plot is purely for fun and concerns a young chap whose long memory doesn't prevent him from getting into trouble. "Gauchos of Eldorado," with the Three Mesquiteers is the second attraction.

The story of a People's crusade

A STORY EVERY AMERICAN CAN BE PROUD OF

This is the story of a people's triumph...the story of an aroused American public marching as to war.

Marching with scrap. Millions of tons of it... from homes, offices, stores, public buildings and farms...from cities, villages and hamlets.

Millions of tons of scrap for the steel mills...to enable them to produce the ships and tanks and planes and guns which our armed forces must have to win the war.

It was a major crisis that faced the nation early in September. If the steel mills didn't get more scrap metal soon, they would be forced to shut down. If the mills shut down...if our Army and Navy didn't get the arms and equipment they needed...how could we be sure of Victory?

It was, said Donald Nelson, one of the nation's gravest war problems.

The War Production Board knew that only by arousing the people in every community, only by making them scrapping mad, could the problem be solved. It had to be a people's job, a people's crusade. Nelson asked the newspapers of the country to lead it.

It was a big assignment. Gladly and quickly the newspapers accepted it. Almost overnight they set up national, sectional, state, and local committees. Almost overnight nearly every newspaper in the country was in action...and had enlisted the aid of local officials and the cooperation of civic, welfare, and religious organizations.

The drive was launched by advertisements...large, small and medium. Prepared by the National Committee of Newspapers and adjusted for local use by local newspapers, they appeared almost overnight and continued almost every day in hundreds of newspapers throughout the country. They furnished the motivating power. They started the people going. And when the people got going, the newspapers gave the drive further momentum with news stories, pictures, cartoons and editorials...urging the public to get out more scrap, to get out more scrap.

Each community handled the drive in its own way...adopted, under the leadership of local newspapers, special plans to fit its own local conditions. In thousands of communities there were local contests, prizes, public meetings, special events...to speed the job along.

Within a few days, the whole nation was scrap-conscious. When the drive was only 16 days old, a Gallup Poll showed that 94 per cent of the people knew about the great crusade, had read about the scrap campaign in their newspapers. The newspapers, with their ads and their stories, had taken the drive into every home in the country.

And within a few days, mountains of scrap began to pile up in thousands of cities, towns and villages. By truckload and bargeload and trainload the metal began to flow across the land to the mills...enabling the furnaces where Victory is being forged to glow again with the white heat of peak production.

The war on the scrap front must go on, of course. The steel mills will need scrap metal as long as the war lasts. But this, the first great battle, is won.

Donald Nelson wanted 4,000,000 tons of scrap in eight weeks. The people gave him more than 5,000,000 tons in three weeks. And that, said Vice Admiral S. M. Robinson, Chief of the Navy's Bureau of Procurement and Material, is enough scrap to build several times more battleships than there are in all the fleets of the world combined.

That's the story, briefly. It's the story of a national triumph made up of thousands of local successes, in which local pride, local energy, and local leadership of newspapers went to work. It's a story in which millions of Americans had a part...a story every American can be proud of. And it demonstrates once again the power of the press, its capacity to serve the public...and its ability not only to sell the people an idea, but to get them to do something about it.

A Statement from DONALD NELSON, Chairman, War Production Board

"This has been a wonderful job and has resulted in increasing the flow of scrap to the steel furnaces that must be kept going to keep our munitions program up. The whole campaign has been a major contribution to the war effort.... The job that the newspapers have done is absolutely unprecedented in this country.... The results have surpassed my fondest hopes."

For the first time in the history of Santa Rosa's wine industry, women were employed to press grapes. Previously women had been employed to pick grapes and lately had taken over jobs of driving trucks loaded with grapes to the winery.

CITY DIGS OUT OF SNOWSTORM

Snowplows Work All Night To Keep Streets, Roads Open; It'll Be Colder.

rain. Temperature ascended to 33 above zero in the early part of the night but a drop to 17 by morning left many cleaned sidewalks a sheen of ice and added skidding peril to auto driving.

Two snow plows and a maintainer were in service by the street department, five trucks hauling snow from crosswalks and removing the slush which had been piled along downtown parking areas.

Howard C. Sword, county engineer, reported that seven plows, two maintainers or bulldozers worked all night, with two trucks aiding the effort today to clear Richland county highways of snow and ice.

Sword said more time has been devoted to highway clearance thus far this fall than during all of last winter.

Storm-bound, only four of nine village and township school superintendents were able to reach a conference here yesterday afternoon with County Superintendent Boyd Robinson on the threatened government (ODT) curtailment of school bus service after Feb. 1 for children living within one and a half miles of the bus line or within two miles of their school. The five absentee superintendents will confer with Robinson at 10 a. m. Saturday.

G. F. Van Tilburg, general manager of the Mansfield Rapid Transit company, said that city buses operated from five to 30 minutes behind schedule last night but that most of them had regained normal schedules by noon today.

"Much colder today and tonight, with snow flurries in the north and east portions," is the Ohio weather forecast for the next 24 hours.

State highway department crews were traversing all state routes with cleaning equipment through the night and today but all highways generally were icy and danger spots were being sanded.

When Kyle yesterday afternoon asked that plows be put in operation Hebel explained that no sidewalk types were available and no adaptable motive power was owned by the city. Kyle suggested the hiring of farm horse teams. Hebel, an old-time liveryman and horse dealer, suggested that the city buy animals after fall farm work is completed, using them for various purposes during the winter and selling them in the higher spring market.

"If council will buy the horses and equipment, I'll work them, gladly," Hebel assured.

"Council has an ordinance requiring property owners to clean their walks," Director Wolf reported when Kyle pressed his demands. "If council will revoke that ordinance and appropriate funds," Wolff continued, "the service department will strive to get equipment. But you must remember council has waited until rubber tires have been frozen, as well as metal tractor equipment, and we will have to show due necessity in order to obtain such material."

When urged to clean some of the residential area sidewalks Hebel averred he would confine such efforts to the areas generally tenanted by war workers who go to work and return home in darkness.

$750.00 in awards go to those readers whose selections are nearest to what the majority of readers think. Every week is a separate survey with a dozen or more cash awards each week.

Every member of any family may send in one answer each week and there are many awards each week, but only one award for a good answer will go to any one family in any one week.

We sincerely want your suggestions and ideas of how we may improve our advertising service for your benefit. Write your letter in your own way! It's the thoughts and suggestions that matter. You are not being "judged" by your letters. Actually they have nothing to do with the awards . . . but . . . they will be helpful by giving additional information to our merchants.

BRITISH DRIVE FOR 100 MILES PAST AGHEILA

Strike Toward Tripoli as Part of Army Closes in on Trapped Axis Tanks.

heavier against the Axis on both flanks of the North African front.

"Extensive fighter patrols carried out by Allied aircraft have entirely prevented enemy air forces from interfering with the advancing Eighth army," the Cairo communique declared.

It said Allied planes attacked Lampedusa Island, between Sicily and Tunisia, bombed and machine-gunned barges off the Tunisian coast, and shot down six or more big Axis planes.

Dispatches from Allied headquarters in Tunisia said one of the most powerful forces of United States bombers and fighters so far sent into the attack had battered the enemy's Tunisian bases yesterday.

German attempts to break up the raids were said to have failed completely. No American planes were lost and only one fighter was damaged, but five German fighters were knocked down and three others damaged badly.

The Russians officially denied German assertions that Red army forces had been encircled and wiped out at Toropets, northeast of Velikie Luki on the central front.

The Russians said their forward forces had hurled the Germans more than 60 miles south and 45 miles west of Toropets "as far back as the winter of 1941-42." An implication was that southbound Red army men threaten Smolensk in the current campaign.

German losses in recent fighting on this front were placed at 7,000, and the Russians said 2,000 of their own troops were killed.

The Nazi high command reported that German forces had gained ground west of Stalingrad after breaking through strong Soviet positions and destroyed 101 Red army tanks in two days of bitter defensive fighting on the Don front. Red air force plane losses for yesterday were listed at 90 craft, against 11 Nazi losses.

Expect Robert to Quit Colonial Post

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico—(AP)—Well-informed sources expressed belief today that Admiral Georges Robert would resign shortly as high commissioner for the French colonies in the Caribbean and French merchant ships now tied up in Martinique subsequently would be placed at the disposal of the Allies.

These sources said that Robert undoubtedly would be succeeded by a man mutually acceptable to both Admiral Jean Darlan and the United States.

It is even possible, they said, that French warships now immobilized at Martinique under an agreement between Robert and the United States government might be turned over to the Allies. These vessels include the 22,000-ton aircraft carrier Bearn and the 10,000-ton cruiser Emile Bertin.

Only Duty to Throw Out Foe, Says Giraud

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA — (Delayed) — (AP)—Tall, thin Gen. Henri Giraud, escape nemesis of the Germans in two wars 25 years apart, asserted emphatically today that he knew but one duty: "To throw out the Boche from the empire and deliver my country."

The hero of two generations of French soldiers spoke in his first interview since he outwitted the Gestapo and escaped from France. The interview was granted to Paul Bringuier of the French Afrique (African) news agency.

General Giraud declared:

"I will not mix up in politics. For French patriots there is but one politics and that is to gather behind the army."

Then he said:

"I only know one duty: to throw out the Boche from the empire and deliver my country. I will do this at the head of my mission."

General Giraud is commander of French forces in North Africa.

Report Nazi Invasion Jitters Growing

STOCKHOLM —(AP)— Feverish German military activity pointing to a growing invasion complex is reported from Norway.

It also was stated that the Norwegians, encouraged by Allied successes, were conducting an active campaign to undermine the morale of the German soldiers occupying their land.

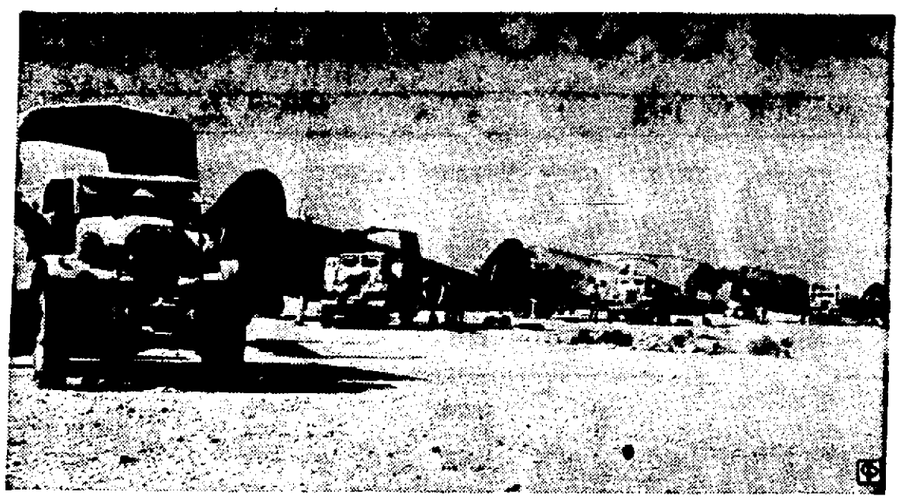
Masara and Talgja fjords, near Stavanger, were reported closed to sea traffic while at Trondheim only ships under 300 tons are permitted free movement. Barbed wire barricades are being erected around constantly expanding defense zones to aid in protecting them against saboteurs.

Norwegian advices also said the Germans were sending considerable reinforcements into Finnmark, Norway's northernmost province.

Norwegian sources said the number of German escort and other vessels damaged in recent months was so heavy that wharves in the north were clogged and many ships were being towed south to Oslo for repairs.

Norwegians said that the isolation of the long Arctic nights, the "cold shoulder" of the Norwegians and other factors were contributing to breaking morale of German soldiers.

These Transport Planes Aid British In Libya



Transport planes have played an important role in the British Eighth army's drive westward across Libya after Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's fleeing Afrika Korps. Some of the big Lockheed Hudson transports are pictured above as they unloaded supplies near Bengazi.

SECRET WEAPON TURNS WAR TIDE

Correspondent Says U. S. Gun Reversed Rommel Drive at El Alamein.

in the rear of the front lines. That night, as they rode up to the front through the dust of the desert tracks, one of the gunners said to me:

"It's the best gun we have ever handled."

I watched the guns wheel into position and open fire. The shells ripped through the armor of all types of Axis tanks—German Mark IIIs' Mark IVs and the new Italian Semoventes. The panzer divisions crumpled under the fire, their lines dissolved and they retreated. But they reformed in the rear and came back for more, hardly believing that any weapon could be so destructive.

They got another dose of the same medicine. It was a mystifying surprise to the Germans, probably as great a surprise as they received when the first tanks lumbered toward their lines in the World war.

The more the British Eighth army used the American gun, the more devastating became the effect on the enemy. The Germans brought up heavy cannon on their own in an attempt to silence the new weapon, but they found to their dismay that the American gun outranged them and that their own shells were falling short of British positions.

One great asset the American guns have is that they can move rapidly. Throughout the duels they deployed continually, blazing away all the time.

Even the appearance of the new gun is terrifying, particularly during night fighting. It gives off a vivid and impressive flash as it fires and it has an unusual shape that in night shadows makes it look like a monster waddling over the desert sands.

I am not permitted to describe details of the gun, but I can tell something about how it was conceived. An American army officer was sent on a mission to the Middle East to report to Washington on the type of modern weapons which the British forces needed to stem Rommel's drive for Suez and then counter-attack.

During the retreat from the Gazala line last July 1 travelled over hundreds of miles of desert with this officer.

"The weapon which we need out here," he told me, "is a self-propelling anti-tank gun. It must have speed so that it can dash in and fight the enemy panzers and then dash away again. It is the obvious successor to the tank itself. The guns is more important in modern war than the tank. If you use a tractored vehicle to propel under its own power a hard-hitting, all-purpose artillery piece, you have the enemy at your mercy."

Completing his front-line tour, the officer flew back to Washington and reported. A few months later the big guns began to arrive in Egypt.

VICTIM'S SON DIES IN CRASH

Sergeant Had Gone to California for Father's Funeral.

BLYTHE, Cal. —(AP)— Sgt. W. C. Hart, 27, one of eight soldiers killed in the crash of an army transport and cargo glider yesterday, had come to the west for the funeral of his father, killed Tuesday night in an airliner crash.

He was the son of W. O. Hart, Orange county (Cal.) publisher, who died with 16 others in a Western Airlines transport near Fairfield, Utah.

Crash of the army ship apparently was due to engine failure during the takeoff, Lieut. Edwin M. Kirton, public relations officer at the Victorville Flying school, said.

GO TO PRISON

CHILLICOTHE — (AP) — Eight American soldiers, believed to be the first military prisoners returned from overseas, were in the Chillicothe federal reformatory today.

Warden F. Lovell Bixby said the prisoners were placed in the customary month's quarantine upon their arrival yesterday. They will be assigned to routine prison duties later.

HOARDER GETS $500

CLEVELAND — (INS) — Mayor Kenneth L. Sims fined A. L. Carson of Euclid, $500 for alleged illegal storage of gasoline. Fire department officials said 1960 gallons were found under the tennis court of his estate.

by individuals or organizations next week.

From another quarter, contributions of groceries are being made this week and next to approximately 300 Mansfield families as a gift to the needy from the estate of the late George M. Morris.

The distribution is being made from the Mohawk Cash store, 38 North Adams street, which the late Mr. Morris founded. It is now owned and operated by his son, Robert M. Morris, who is executor of the estate. Sections of Mr. Morris' will provided that food items be presented 300 needy families each year for five years. This is the fourth distribution.

Groceries were being distributed at the store to persons whose names were certified by J. V. Finney, Mansfield-Richland county relief director, and various charity and welfare agencies.

Food orders for the Give-A-Christmas baskets were placed today by Adjt. Hoffman including one for $300 worth of chickens. The latter will replace meat on the holiday menus this year. Baskets will contain one, two and three chickens, according to the size of the family, Hoffman said. Included among the other foods will be potatoes, peas, noodles, bread, oleo, jell-o, milk, celery, cereal, oranges, grapes, apples, cookies, bread, canned peaches and cranberries.

Some difficulty has been experienced in obtaining candy for the baskets, Hoffman said. Several hundred pounds are needed but wholesalers indicate they are unable to supply that amount.

Baskets will be packed prior to Dec. 24, and deliveries will be made on that date to all persons unable to call at the citadel. Families receiving baskets will be urged to arrange their own transportation if at all possible.

The Salvation Army only recently assumed the responsibility of acting as clearing house for the Give-A-Christmas program. Until this year all adoptions and baskets have been cleared through the Mansfield Community Fund office which was aided in sponsoring the program last year by the Junior Association of Commerce and The Mansfield News-Journal.

RIVETERS QUIT AT SHIPYARDS

100 A. F. L. Workers Walk Out At Lorain, Cleveland.

CLEVELAND—(INS)—One hundred A. F. of L. riveters refused to work today at the Cleveland and Lorain yards of the American Shipbuilding company, when their demands for time and one-half pay for repairing ships were not met.

The day shift of 76 riveters walked off the job at the Lorain yards and came to Cleveland to confer with company officials. At the same time, 24 riveters in the Cleveland yards quit work.

G. W. Gulart, union business agent, said the strike was unauthorized.

Rickenbacker's Back--Thinner But Rarin' to Go

SAN FRANCISCO—(AP)—Eddie Rickenbacker, the man who always comes back, is back in America today—suntanned, grinning and a'rarin' to go again.

He arrived yesterday wearing a set of clothes picked up all across the Pacific—a marine sun helmet, army shirt and a pair of navy trousers.

Some deep, new lines in his face and a noticeable loss of weight gave evidence of the ordeal Rickenbacker survived after his plane, on a special mission, was forced down in the Pacific. Rickenbacker was lost for 24 days. One member of the party of seven died from the hardships.

He was under army orders to give out no statement until he made his official report first to Washington. He wouldn't even talk about the weather.

'DEAL' FORCES HENDERSON OUT OF OPA POST

Farm Bloc and Administration Come to Terms, Say Congress Sources.

House and President Roosevelt set in motion the most drastic shake-up on the civilian war front since the war began.

The first announcement came from the White House which released Henderson's letter of resignation—"dictated principally by a recurrent physical difficulty and a rather bad impairment of my eyesight"—and the president's acceptance.

Mr. Roosevelt's letter made it plain that while Henderson may eventually be brought back into government service, he will not return to the office of price administration. When you are able to return to work, the president said, "I shall certainly want your assistance in some other capacity."

Henderson's number had been up in congress for several weeks. The farm bloc had made no secret of its plan to "get" him when the new session convenes. Chairman Hampton P. Fulmer, (D.,S.C.) of the house agriculture committee said after Henderson's resignation: "It looks like Henderson got the jump on congress; we planned to have him resign when the new session starts."

Virtually all sources in congress believed that the president would pick Brown for the spot vacated by Henderson. Brown left for Detroit late yesterday and would say only:

"Any statement as to my future connection with the government must come from the White House. I have nothing to say."

Sources close to Brown revealed that he had conferred on at least two occasions recently with the president, Stabilization Director James F. Byrnes and Henderson on the matter of possibly replacing Henderson, or of becoming Byrnes' personal assistant. Those sources said Brown himself is not sure which job will be offered to him.

President Roosevelt stipulated in accepting Henderson's resignation that he remain in office until his successor is chosen. When Henderson leaves, it will be the first time since 1934 that he has not held a government job. His first appearance with the New Deal was as a consultant for the NRA.

"Henderson never has been popular in congress, although most leaders conceded privately that under the circumstances he had done a good job as price administrator.

Henderson, in tendering his resignation, said that his physicians had ordered him to take "a long rest." His major trouble was understood to be with his back—a condition stemming from avoirdupois. His spinal column bends under the strain of his more than 200 pounds and now and then has to be straightened. He was last "bent back into shape" at Johns Hopkins hospital in Baltimore in 1938.

He Got the Bird--Really

Here's an American eagle who really got the bird—and no fooling. Bob Schuessler, Chicagoan who is an aviation cadet at Greenville, Tex., ran into this bird 3,000 feet up. The body lodged in the motor cowling until the plane returned to the field.

commander of the Allied air forces in the southwest Pacific, has been decorated by Gen. Douglas MacArthur for "singularly meritorious action" in developing parachute fragmentation bombs which are released from attack planes at 80 to 100-foot altitudes.

Indicate Japs Feel Pinch of Ship Losses

NEW YORK—(AP)—Indicating that Japan is beginning to feel the pinch of a shipping shortage as a result of war losses, the Berlin radio broadcast a dispatch from Tokyo today saying that Japanese shipyards were planning construction of a large number of Chinese junks for use in Asiatic water.

The broadcast emphasized that it took one to two months to build a junk, intimating that time was one factor which had influenced the Japanese in favor of this type of construction.

Tokyo Fearful of U. S. Raids on Japan

NEW YORK—(AP)—The Tokyo radio indicated today the Japanese continue to be anxious concerning United States air raids on Japan proper, asserting steps were taken to forestall such an attack on the recent anniversary of Pearl Harbor.

The radio broadcast this account by Domei, the official news agency, of "enemy efforts to exploit the occasion of the greater East Asia war anniversary:"

"From about Dec. 4 the enemy air force, especially American units, began suddenly dispatching squadrons of bomber and fighter planes to Kweilin, Kwangsi province, Henkchow, Hunan province, and other places, making various suggestive moves.

"By these actions it became clear that the enemy was planning to raid occupied territories especially in Central and South China on or about the war anniversary or even raid Nippon, especially Kyushu (southermost of the home islands) and Formosa (colony off the China coast).

"But the Japanese air corps was not to be caught napping and in its usual fashion took a headstart on the enemy by swooping down on the chief enemy bases in huge formations of fighter and bomber planes from Dec. 6 to Dec. 8."

CANCEL EAST'S A, B, C, COUPONS

population would go along with the order cheerfully.

Affected by the order were some 7,200,000 motorists.

Mr. Roosevelt made his statements in commenting on reports that the original plan suspending A books would be instituted shortly. But so fast did events move in Washington that Henderson not only suspended the A coupons but the B and C books even while the president was speaking at his usual bi-weekly press conference.

Provisions were made for motorists to use one of the coupons in case of "emergencies" but no regulations were laid down as to what might constitute an emergency.

The order by Henderson ended 24 hours of uncertainty in Washington and along the rest of the eastern seaboard states. The shortage became alarming yesterday, and there were rumors and official reports throughout the night that Henderson would invalidate all "A" coupon books.

While motorists along the east coast made long lines at filling stations during the morning hoping to spend their last "A" coupons, Henderson issued the order which was far more drastic than anyone had predicted.

In the case of emergency, motorists will be allowed to spend only one ticket. Three gallons can be bought in such cases with an A coupon, and four gallons with the B and C coupons.

Today's order virtually forces 7,200,000 passenger cars off the highways except for emergency driving.

States affected follow:

Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Connecticut, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia, North Carolina, Georgia, Florida and South Carolina and the District of Columbia.

SECRET PRESS STIRS FRENCH TO RESISTANCE

Nazis Try to Throttle Score of Underground Newspapers With Big Circulation.

By LOWELL BENNETT
(INS Staff Correspondent)

LONDON—A score of underground newspapers with a combined circulation of nearly a million copies weekly today are becoming an increasingly important factor in preparing the people of France for the impending second front in Europe.

Copies of these periodicals reach London regularly and are studied by the intelligence staffs at British, American and French headquarters.

They provide valuable information and act as a guide to the trends of French resistance to the Nazi occupation forces. Their reports give also detailed evidence of sabotage and active resistance against the Germans.

"Combat," largest and most influential of these newspapers, has a circulation of 80,000 twice weekly.

The next two most important papers are "France Tireur" (guerilla) and "Populaire."

A perusal of the papers proves that while they are nowhere near agreement in their war aims, all are agreed on one thing—Nazi Germany must be destroyed.

Most of them accept General Charles de Gaulle, commander of the Fighting French Forces, as the leader, at least temporarily, of the French nation. Others support popular leaders within France, some of whom have been imprisoned by the Germans.

Their importance in preparing the way for an Allied attack is seen in their lists of instructions on "how to kill Germans." Varied methods of sabotage and wholesale destruction are discussed at length.

Some of them act as the nucleus for bands of armed guerrillas, and in their columns organize and expand resistance in both the occupied and unoccupied zones.

German repressive measures against the clandestine press are extreme. A death penalty clause in the law prohibits the "printing and distribution of periodicals not sanctioned by the German authorities."

But publication continues, and the expanding circulation figures tell a story in themselves, a story of growing French resistance against the Nazis and increasing preparation for the call to arms.

DECIDE AGAINST PUBLISHING SENIOR HIGH'S 'MANHIGAN'

Mansfield Senior high pupils learned today that their annual year bok, The Manhigan, will not be printed this year since photographers have no film available to take pictures.

Until today, school officials were hopeful that in some way the pupils would be able to have a year book, but upon finding out for certain that no pictures could be used, decided against having a publication.

Plans and art designs by pupils in Miss Mary J. Bolus' art classes have already gotten under way, G. P. VanArnam, editorial advisor, said. Expecting some sort of reduction, the staff had reduced the number of pages by one third, totaling approximately 80 pages, he stated. Phyllis Voyik and James Bierly had been named last year as the co-editors.

The dollar included in the activity books which pupils buy at the beginning of each school year, which is to cover the cost of the publication, will be deducted from the usual number of stamps required in the activity books, Sherman, business advisor, stated. Instead of buying 10-cent stamps for 35 weeks, the pupils will only buy them to cover a 25-week period.

SPEED LIMIT HELPS ANIMALS

ROSCOMMON, Mich. — (U.P.) — Harold Tubbs, Ogemaw state game area manager, said today wildlife would be one of the chief beneficiaries of the 35-mile-an-hour speed limit.

On a one-mile stretch of highway in the area Tubbs found that in a year's time traffic victims numbered seven deer, three porcupines, two muskrats, five snowshoe hares, seven ruffed grouse, one raccoon, two woodchucks, one cottontail rabbit and one badger.

Tunis, with a population of 219,000, contains 93,000 Mohammedans and 50,000 French.

Sweaters, Gloves, Socks Sent Out From Red Cross

Warm knitted army and navy sweaters, mufflers, gloves, socks and helmets, 560 of them were started on their way to military bases in six states by Richland county chapter of the Red Cross yesterday.

One shipment of army mufflers went to Patterson Field in Dayton, the only Ohio base to receive Mansfield supplies this month. Another shipment of mufflers went to Indiantown Gap, Pa., while the United States marine barracks at New River, N. C., received the sweaters, Fort Myers, Va., the gloves and the state arsenal in New Jersey and the Red Cross collection point in St. Louis, Mo., an assortment of supplies.

Only articles for the military are now being made by volunteer Red Cross knitters, Mrs. Louis J. Ott, production chairman, said. Orders for civilian garments were halted with the receipt of army and navy yarns.

HUNTING BAD FOR PROFESSOR

BOWLING GREEN — (INS) — Game hunting has been poor this season for Prof. Willard Singer of the physics department at Bowling Green State university. He hasn't "caught" a pheasant.

Though he never uses a gun, he captured two pheasants during the 1941 season—both in his back yard. He pinned one with a rake and trapped the other in a fence corner with a bushel basket.

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO FRIDAY, DECEMBER 18 1942

Too late to mail Christmas cards early! Even the local ones should be in the mail by now.

The December date for which a Swiss astrologer predicted the end of the world is now past—so it'll be all right to proceed with whatever you had been postponing.

It's No. 10 coupon that now entitles you to buy three pounds of sugar, and No. 27 that you use in buying a pound of coffee—and if it's an A book you can buy four gallons of gasoline a week—in case you may have become confused.

Reserve Judgment In Darlan Case

ANY ATTEMPTS now being made to reach conclusions about Admiral Darlan's past behavior and present attitude toward the Axis and the United Nations will lack the full information needed to judge the man fairly.

Whatever Darlan's appearance of friendliness toward Hitler may have been following the fall of France, the explanation he gives is as reasonable as can be imagined.

"The aim of all I did while in the French cabinet," he said, "was to keep within due limits the power Germany had gained over France and to save all that could be saved of my unfortunate country. . . . As long as the Allied nations were not ready to help France in resuming the struggle I tried, sad and resigned, to prevent France from dying under the German heel."

Darlan's actions in West Africa thus far have not only been helpful to the Allies but have evidenced a sincere desire to restore France as an independent nation. Darlan denies having any political aspirations for himself—but that would also be a matter for decision by the French people as a part of their rehabilitation program after the war.

The stigma under which Darlan rests, in some quarters, may be comparable to an actual happening in our own Civil war, popularized in the story and screen play, "The Copperhead," in which a northerner serving in special work for President Lincoln went through to old age under the shadow of suspicion that he was friendly to the Confederate cause.

It will be well, in the Darlan case, to reserve judgment until after the war has been won. In any event, whatever help he can, and seems willing to give the United Nations should continue to be accepted.

'Bloc' System Increases Inflation

ONE BIG TROUBLE in this country seems to result from the "bloc" system. Particularly the labor bloc and the farm bloc, both of which are powerful. If serious inflation comes, it will come mainly from these sources.

Chief victims now seem to be the so-called "middle class," who without much if any increase of income have to pay more for everything they buy, and will soon be subject to much higher taxes.

There has been sympathy for the farmers, even among their economic victims. Often they have been the "goats" of the national system, making a bare living from far harder and longer toil than some other groups are accustomed to and they should not be condemned for a moderate rise in agricultural prices. But when it comes to basing such prices on a system which, in addition to the farmer's investment and labor, includes salaries for others in the farmer's family, obviously the plan is open to laxity and abuse. Such a plan is so revolutionary that it should be studied carefully before congress takes action on it.

Mayor LaGuardia Makes a Discovery

THERE'S an old saying, "You never miss the water till the well runs dry," which somehow seems to fit the case of New York's Mayor LaGuardia, who yesterday frankly admitted: "We can't get along without the newspapers. We have learned that."

The occasion for his remark was restoration of newspaper deliveries after a strike that had virtually eliminated newspapers from New York City for three days.

As in some other instances, the attitude of New York's mayor toward the newspapers of that city has not always been friendly, probably for the reason that he is a dictatorial type of person, somewhat stubborn in his assuredness, and resentful of anything in the way of adverse criticism, which has been considerable.

He has had the good sense, however, to recognize the importance of keeping newspaper readers informed on matters of public business, and has never denied access to his office by representatives of any of the New York newspapers.

It has long been recognized that a newspaper, however hard it may try, cannot please everybody. A story is told that on one occasion this was attempted, with the result that all pages were left entirely blank.

It is gratifying to have Mayor LaGuardia pass the word along: "We can't get along without newspapers. We have learned that." Most people know this—but a few may not.

Germany's Choice of Heroes

GERMANY [illegible] intimate in her national heroes. Before Hitler [illegible] seems to have been highly acceptable to [illegible] was winning, his people's great political [illegible] from 1863 to 1890, Count Otto [illegible] Bismarck.

Bismarck [illegible]. That is an achievement for which Germa[illegible] Others cannot forget that he was, in his [illegible] of "blood and iron." Honorable scruples [illegible] as to Hitler. He made a pretext for [illegible] by falsifying a telegram. Liberty was [illegible] by both Hitler and Bismarck.

His merit, as far as the world as a whole is concerned, was his prudence. He knew when Germany had gained enough, and when he had brought her to the top of the European pile, he sought no further adventures. The last 19 years of his rule were years in which his main effort was to keep the peace, and millions might well thank him for that. But it was policy, not conviction. His harshness cuts a poor figure beside the uprightness of Washington and the magnanimity of Lincoln.

One problem that the peacemakers must solve is now the Germans can be persuaded to worship a different kind of hero.

It is noted that, with only four gallons of gas a week, relatives are becoming more distant.

Don't forget the Christmas seals.

"SUGAR" RATIONING THAT DOESN'T SEEM TO WORK!

Wartime News Still Conflicting

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON—Wartime news, is rather conflicting, as dished out officially in Washington.

From our various fighting fronts, with the exception of early Pearl Harbor, tidings have been pretty uniformly gratifying, if accurate. Yet we're constantly warned, by the highest of higher-ups, not to be prematurely encouraged, for a continuing desperate struggle still is ahead of us.

Also, we seldom are advised of reverses the Axis forces have suffered, without mention of certain advances they've made on various sectors.

The other day Treasury Secretary Henry Morgenthau broadcast an interview to the effect that we can stand considerably heavier taxation than we're footing the bill for already.

This would be cheering but for the fact that, the day previously, the treasury permitted a leak from a "confidential source" (an expression employed to guarantee reliability, without quoting anybody in particular) voicing the department's perfect awareness that "millions of Americans" won't be able to pay their next instalment of levies on their incomes in March, 1943.

The announcement, from its wording, evidently was made with a view to posting the public as to permissibilities toward stringing out its tax payments on as much, even, as a weekly basis, instead of driving it into immediate bankruptcy.

But if it amounts to "Pooh-pooh!" merely, "these taxes are a mere 'bag o' shells' compared with what's coming,' it isn't so enticing.

Conflicting Views.

Salesmen of wartime supplies are being tipped off not to head into Washington too rapidly, looking for orders, since Uncle Sam has, on hand or coming shortly, about all he can absorb at present. Such suggestions have given rise to the surmise that the war's end is foreseen by approximately next August, so that an undue congestion will be undesirable after about then.

No news could be pleasanter, except for War Production Board Chairman Donald M. Nelson's simultaneous announcement that our war production gains were "disappointing" in October. A "stepping up of the pace is essential," he assures us.

Big business has been strenuously regulated to prevent it from getting TOO big. And wages are restricted.

But how is big business too big?

And what do wages amount to?

Well, according to municipal public service statistics

District of Columbia taxicabmen are scoring $100 weekly at present, on an average, per hacker.

Why, girls in stores will have to foot income tax bills.

Common labor may have to.

Of course Washington is abnormal.

Of course the National Capital's growth is phenomenal. Only Detroit beats it. And Detroit had more elasticity to beat it initially.

The question arises—

Are we over-stocking?

It's told both ways.

In post-war years it'll signify, maybe, economically.

That's what some cautious people are wondering about.

But, right now, the armed forces are slowing down on buying.

It seems inconsistent.

And so do some of the other details.

Man About Manhattan

Cairo First Stop

—By GEORGE TUCKER

(Editor's Note: George Tucker, your old friend on the Broadway beat, is going to war. He has other, more vital stories to report than the Manhattan scene. In the past couple of articles, and in today's column, he tells the background of this move, which is an important indication of the trends of modern newspaper reporting.)

NEW YORK—When the boss told me I was going to Cairo I almost fell out of the chair. They were, to me, the most impressive words I had heard in a long while, and for a moment my heart stood still. I didn't know whether to try to compose myself or to get up and shout, and so I compromised by leaping up and shaking his hand.

He said, "Not so fast. There are a few things we've got to talk about. Before I send you out of the country I want to give you the other side of what may appear now to be a glamorous experience."

I said, "Yes, sir."

"THERE are" he went on, "great dangers involved. One of our foreign staff members is missing and we fear he may be dead. Another is a prisoner of war. Still others have been injured, or have had very narrow escapes. Many have become ill.

"There is no telling where a man in the foreign countries may be sent. In many countries the living conditions are terrible, the drinking water is dangerous, and none of the ordinary comforts of home is available.

"All such assignments now have to be for the duration because of the uncertainties of transportation. Former provisions for home leave can not apply in war time.

"There is no likelihood that your family can join you. You should make provision so that they can carry on without you indefinitely.

"There are no regular hours in the foreign service, and vacations are on a catch-as-catch-can basis under present conditions.

"This paints a very dark picture. But it is all true, just as it is true that there are momentous events to be reported and great stories to be written.

"Do you still want to go?"

I said, "Yes, sir."

He said, "All right. Get ready to go. Write yourself a series of farewell columns. Explain to your readers that I'm not going to replace you. When you leave—this column fades out—at least until the end of the war.

The importance of this war cannot possibly be over-emphasized. We all have too great a stake in the outcome. It is more important right now than anything else and this includes first nights, country clubs, and cafe gossip."

I THOUGHT back, over the old bygone days when the Butter & Egg men were around, when the "Hollo Sucker" era was in high tide and when Broadway—or was it Wall Street—was still the real center of the world. Gradually some of that importance has been dispersed to Hollywood and to Washington and to other pow- and now there is war, and though the tom-toms still beat along the street that has been called Rue Regret, there are other days and other times.

I went over to the International building and put in an application for a passport that looks like a secret censored passage out of the Arabian Nights. This passport calls for Egypt and India, Iran, Iraq, Palestine, Turkey, Russia. But Cairo is the first stop, and in this war Cairo is the hub of the wheel. Whichever way the war rolls, I'll roll too.

I was vaccinated for smallpox, and inoculated for typhoid, yellow fever, typhus, tetanus, and cholera. The smallpox took fast. The typhoid threw me, which pleased the doctor a great deal. He said I was a wonderful subject. He was like a demolition expert at work on an old bridge, and I was the bridge.

I don't know why I am telling you all this, except that we are old friends and I hope you will remember me when I shift from the editorial page to the front page and begin to write from other cross-roads more ancient and storied than Times Square can ever be.

I expect to be gone for a long time but then Broadway itself will still be here. After all, it has already been here more than 200 years.

As Others See It

Then He Found Out.

"I joined the navy because I admired the way the ships were kept so clean and tidy," a Boston boy writes home. "I didn't know until this week who kept them clean and tidy."—Detroit News.

These Changing Times.

The modern woman, with an average consumption of a pack a day, has ruined that fine old vintage joke about the woman who bought her husband a stair carpet for Christmas, while he bought her a smoking set.—Boston Globe.

Timely Editorial

Proper Action.

A discharge "other than honorable" from the service is the proper and justified method of dealing with the case of the misguided WAAC who went AWOL and was discovered doing a strip-tease act under an assumed name in a Des Moines theater.

The episode had received wide publicity and to have glossed over the offense of this enrollee, described by her commander as "just a girl who had no understanding of her responsibilities" would have been an injustice to the thousands of earnest young women who, out of patriotic motives, have joined the feminine auxiliary army and are doing their full duty conscientiously.

The action emphasizes the fact that the women's army is no playground. To have allowed Amber D'Geoge, nee Kathryn Gregory, to get away with what she attempted and stay in the service would have given her fellow WAACS and the public a wrong and unfortunate impression.—Columbus Dispatch.

Everyday Poem

—By GEORGE ELLISTON

Book Friends.

I find them in each book I read,
These friends that come so near,
And I enjoy the best of them
Each month of every year.

How close they come to me, book friends.
More real they are than friends
Of flesh and blood; sad are farewells
When any story ends.

And they return in quiet hours
To take my hand and say
The words they spoke on pages that
I scanned another day.

Interpreting the War News

Mine-Strewn Roads Mark Route Of Rommel's Retreat In Africa

—By DE WITT MACKENZIE

CAIRO—Nazi Marshal Rommel's tactics in the face of Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's powerful new attack fit perfectly with the idea advanced in this column before the drive started that Hitler has assigned him to do a holding operation without adequate resources while the fuehrer realigns his continental defenses to meet the widespread eruption of Allied initiative.

Unless the all highest's infallible intuition envisages something which is not apparent to ordinary mortals he can have small expectation of being able to keep a foothold in northern Africa in view of the Allied strength massing against him.

Thus, Rommel's task is to sacrifice his army and himself in an effort to buy time for his master.

Indications are that Rommel had intended to make a stand in his strong positions at El Agheila. His defenses there had been long prepared to meet contingencies in previous swings of fortune in the desert.

However, Montgomery has moved so swiftly and handled his striking power with such skill that the Nazi captain was forced either to retreat or run the grave risk of complete annihilation.

Thus we see Rommel retiring again and, as he pulls back, leaving a trail of mines to block the pursuers.

Now, the use of mines is very common and their normal employment would cause no surprise. However, the vast numbers which the marshal sowed indicate that his preparations were made well in advance and contemplated the likelihood of retreat.

Nazi mine-sowing in the withdrawal from El Agheila naturally must slow the progress of the Eighth army somewhat since these dangerous explosives must be removed before traffic can pass.

Also, the further the British advance from their main bases the greater is the problem of transport although, as I previously have reported, the Eighth army has performed wonders in the organization of transport.

That Montgomery should be able to move his supplies across hundreds of miles of desert and strike so soon must remain one of the marvels of World war II.

How long Rommel can keep up his delaying tactics is purely a matter of guesswork.

Probably he himself has small idea. There is one thing his mines will not halt and that is the merciless bombardment to which he is subjected day and night by the British and American air forces.

There is no escape for the unhappy Axis troops and their transport, for whichever way they go those all-seeing warships of the air are after them.

* * *

BY THE WAY, our American airmen are continuing to do a grand job along with their British colleagues.

So, while British infantry and transport may have to slow up some because of mines, there really will be little loss to the Allies.

While sappers are removing the mines and supplies are moving up, the Allied air force will be exacting a terrible toll among the retreating enemy.

The result will be that as the British army advances it will move as a well-co-ordinated and well-supplied unit ready for anything.

It is likely that Rommel may hope to make some sort of stand in the great wadis or gorges which lie ahead. That probably will depend on whether he can escape the bloody pounding of the Allied air forces which never sleep and never let him sleep.

* * *

THE COMMONEST mines which the Germans are employing are circular steel cases about a foot in diameter and four inches thick. On top is a plunger which will move downward when a certain weight is applied to it and explode the mine. Most of them are set so that the plunger works when the wheel of an ordinary mortor car passes over it.

The explosion is sufficient to wreck a truck and obviously endanger the life of anyone in the vehicle.

These discs of death are buried in the roadways and, especially, on the sides of roads where vehicles have to turn out for passing traffic. They are thoroughly nasty affairs for it may happen that 20 cars will pass over one of them without harm, thus encouraging other cars to follow, and then the 21st will catch it.

The other day I motored over a piece of road from which, subsequently, 14 mines were extracted.

The removal of these mines is a job which calls for scientific knowledge, skill and, above all, extreme bravery.

We don't hear much about the sappers who go about digging up explosives but they are among the greatest heroes of the war for they risk terrible death every time they lie down on their bellies and start digging cautiously for a mine which has been located.

The location of the mines is done with delicate instruments which are unerring.

Once the detector has given its warning, the sappers start digging for trouble.

Watching Trends

—By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON — It begins to look as if we may at last get the lowdown on Puerto Rico.

There have been violent rumblings that all is not well with our island outpost in the Caribbean. The political situation there has been and still is a muddle and a mess, with more verbal violence than has taken place in any of our states or cities for a good many years. Dr. Rexford Guy Tugwell, governor of the island, has been called "Rex, the Red," the "reddish Don Quixote of the New Deal," and worse.

There have been reports and charges that thousands of Puerto Rican natives are starving; that infant mortality is "beyond description;" that ships coming back from the island have been weighted with ballast when they could have brought sugar; that the foodstuffs sent them are things which they can't eat.

When Tugwell appeared recently before the Puerto Rican legislature, 27 senators and representatives "took a walk" and left the session in an uproar.

THE situation has finally come to a head and the senate, on a motion by Sen. Dennis Chavez (New Mexico Democrat), is going to look into conditions there. However, the senate ordered its committee to confine itself to the food shortage and unemployment only.

Washington observers are getting a snicker out of this limitation on the committee's operations. Handsome, 50-year-old "Rex" Tugwell has been under fire almost from the moment he joined the brain trusters in the dark days of the depression. There is no reason to believe that the opposition senators will lay off him now that he is in one of the worst insular messes that World War II has brought about.

CHAVEZ is chairman of the subcommittee. He has indicated that he doesn't intend to spare the rod in ferreting out the errors that have brough Puerto Rico to grief. The two other Democratic members of the committee are Senators Homer T. Bone, of Washington, and Allen J. Ellender, of Louisiana. Republican members of the committee are Senators Gerald P. Nye, of North Dakota, and John A. Danaher, of Connecticut.

Senators Nye and Danaher are vigorous opponents of the New Deal and it would be inconceivable if either would pass an opportunity to plaster one of its long-standing stalwarts. Nye's reputation as an investigator is well established but those who have watched Danaher on the senate floor predict he'll give an all-out performance in his effort to uncover mismanagement and incompetence in our handling of Puerto Rico.

Capital observers say if you think this committee is going to confine itself to mere food shortages, there's another think coming. Out of it, we may get enough facts to clarify the strangest situation that has occurred in the United States' modern management of its insular affairs.

A Farmer's Diary

Bird Lover

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

ONE early morning, since the deepest snow had fallen, I saw an old lady stand by a tree on her front lawn and tie a piece of suet to a cherry limb. The hard dry stuff fitted well into a knotty crotch.

It was very cold, yet I was surprised at her deliberate manner. This aged country woman handled that food for birds and patted it into place like something precious. Hardly had she turned her back, until a troop of sparrows, hungry and bedraggled, pounced on the feast. They twisted, tugged and chattered until the cold air rang.

Then a cardinal, followed by his modest wife, perched thoughtfully upon an upper branch. Suddenly the male flew down and took possession. After tasting and testing to his own satisfaction, I saw him look up and motion to his timid mate. Pleased, she flew close and began her meal.

To each other, while feeding, I heard them utter short contented notes. Unmolested for two minutes, they felt satisfied, and dipped down into the soft skiff of snow atop the crust, for a few mouthfuls. The suet had made them thirsty.

Following these, a noisy bluejay screamed as it lit near the cherry crotch. Like mad it tore into that tattered suet. Large loosened chunks disappeared with ease. Two titmice who had stopped to watch were worried over the capacity of this blue-coated glutton, lest there be nothing left for a second table. My sympathies were with the titmouse and his mate. I threw a frosty bit of snow crust and frightened the bluejay so that he went behind the barn. As if they understood, the titmice darted down upon the tattered bit of food. I admired their dainty table manners. Even gnawing hunger on a snowy morning did not cause them to lay aside the well-taught etiquette.

When the old lady saw me stand and watch her feathered friends, she invited me into the cottage. "How long have you been feeding the birds?" I asked, "They seem to know you."

"That's nothing," she answered. "Watch."

She brought a shiny pan that held grains of wheat and crumbs of meal. I watched from the window as she went toward the cherry tree, tapping lightly on the edge of the metal pan. Sparrows and chickadees and jays—they lit upon her pan, upon her hands, upon her shoulders and head. They ate the grain.

She came back toward the house with a happy face. "My grandmother taught me to know the birds—for she did. Birds and garden flowers were both made a part of my life by her. It has kept me from ever being lonely," she said simply.

"Lightly falls the foot of time that only treads on flowers."

3 HEROES DIE RATHER THAN FAIL MISSION

Try to Save Damaged Plane, But Crack Up in West African Jungle.

By GRAHAM HOVEY

SOMEWHERE IN WEST AFRICA —(INS)— Three volleys of shots rang out in salute as members of a rifle squad raised their guns over three freshly-dug graves.

A bugler sounded 'Taps."

A Baptist minister, who had served with the Canadian Grenadier Guards in the first World war, stepped forward with his Bible.

"I am the resurrection and the life," he read. "He that believeth in me, though he were dead, yet shall he live. And whosoever liveth and believeth in me shall never die."

Turning from the Scriptures, the minister declared:

"We commend to the loving care of the Father the bereaved ones in the United States, as we commit the bodies of our young friends who died for us in the cause of freedom."

Thus were Pilot Emmet F. Clausewitz, First Officer E. G. Kail and Navigator Marcus L. Corley buried in a grassy little hilltop cemetery in West Africa on a sunny afternoon. They were not army officers, these three young Americans, but cogs in a vital wartime transport service operated by a private airways company.

Yet, they were buried with full military honors by order of U. S. army authorities who appreciated the contribution they had tried to make to the United Nations war effort—and no one who knew their story could begrudge them that privilege.

Clausewitz, Kail and Corley had crashed to their deaths in a partially-cleared jungle area two days earlier because they refused to abandon a crippled, twin-engined bomber in which they were carrying out an important mission to one of the fighting fronts.

One of the engines had failed while the men were still 200 miles off the West African coast, but they had brought the plane to shore on the remaining motor. They might have jumped from the plane when they were only a hundred yards off shore and paddled to safety in their Mae West jackets, they might have parachuted to safety after reaching land.

Instead, they preferred to attempt a landing in the jungle clearing, hoping that their plane might thus be saved and that they might thus be able to fulfill their mission. The gamble failed.

Exactly what happened will never be known. Captains Steve Shaw and "Red" Moore of Pan American Airways, who spotted the wreckage from the air, set their small amphibian plane down in a nearby river, and battled ten miles through swamps and jungle all night to reach the spot. believe Clausewitz may have been deceived by the terrain.

"The clearing looked like a strip of level land from the air, but it was actually full of holes, some of which were four and five feet deep," Shaw said. He and Moore flew back to their base after finding the wreckage and returned later with five assistants who helped salvage the bodies.

Clausewitz, Kail and Corley failed in the specific mission they set out from the United States to accomplish, but if men are still inspired by deeds of complete devotion to duty and forgetfulness of self the contribution of this trio will long be considered a substantial one.

Duck! And They Do--In Time

Here is exciting action on the Libyan front. British infantrymen, running after Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's forces, throw themselves flat on the ground to avoid splinters from the shell exploding ahead of them. Picture is by News of the Day Newsreel.

GAS STATION HOME

TOLEDO —(U P)— Houses are scarce but vacant filling stations are becoming plentiful. Mr and Mrs George A. Weber solved their housing problem by redecorating the office of one and moving in. The "lubritorium" is now the workshop for Weber's drapery and slip cover business.

THEY LIKE BING

Crosby Records Help Speed Australian Workers.

SYDNEY—(U P)—Bing Crosby is getting more work for defense out of Sydney girls than they have ever given before.

"He is easily the most popular artist of all those we play in music-while-you-work periods for our factory staff," said the managing director of one firm. "Our production figures have improved about five per cent."

One firm plays request numbers as often as the girls want them (except that no two records of the same rhythm or same class of music follow) and a Bing Crosby record, at intervals has been played six times in a day. Too fast, too slow, or too mournful records are out because they hinder normal work rhythm.

DIM OUT FLAG AT MEMORIAL

WORCHESTER, Mass. —(INS)— The constant light which illuminated the U. S. flag at the world war memorial in Lincoln square was put out 30 minutes after sundown on the day new dimout regulations went into effect.

The flag at the memorial has flown night and day, illuminated at night by floodlights, for 10 years. The only other places where the flag waves night and day are the national capitol and Fort McHenry, Baltimore, in honor of Francis Scott Key.

The land route from Dakar to the Mediterranean is nearly 3,000 miles in length.

Named to Rail Presidencies

Meeting in Cleveland, the board of directors of three railroads that traverse the dense industrial sectors of the midwest, the Nickel Plate, Chesapeake & Ohio, and Pere Marquette, named three new presidents (above) to succeed George Brooke, who has been acting president of the three roads since 1937. Left to right are Robert J. Bowman of the Pere Marquette; John W. Davin of the Nickel Plate road, and Carl Newton of the Chesapeake & Ohio.

DEFEATS DAD AS DEER HUNTER

LITTLETON, N. H. — (INS) — Fifteen-year-old Robert Thompson is outdoing his father this year. His dad, Roland, has brought home a deer every year since he was 14 years old—a total of 32 in a row.

With his father still trying to get his 1942 buck, Robert went into the Twin mountain region and killed a 180-pound eight-point deer, his first contribution to what may be a long and fierce fight for family supremacy as "Deer Slayer."

Be Quick To Treat Bronchitis

Chronic bronchitis may develop if your cough, chest cold, or acute bronchitis is not treated and you cannot afford to take a chance with any medicine less potent than Creomulsion which goes right to the seat of the trouble to help loosen and expel germ laden phlegm and aid nature to soothe and heal raw, tender, inflamed bronchial mucous membranes.

Creomulsion blends beechwood creosote by special process with other time tested medicines for coughs. It contains no narcotics.

No matter how many medicines you have tried, tell your druggist to sell you a bottle of Creomulsion with the understanding you must like the way it quickly allays the cough, permitting rest and sleep, or you are to have your money back. (Adv.)

RAPID CLIMB

Promotions Come Fast For Ball Player In Army.

MIAMI BEACH, Fla.—(INS)—They told Herbert Thomas, one-time member of the New York Giants baseball team, that promotions in the army came quickly. But the utter truth of this statement in his own case surprised even Thomas.

He started out as a private, got corporal's stripes after his first day, and the following afternoon was awarded the rank of staff sergeant.

Thomas enlisted for World war I at the age of 15, and was active with the National Guard before being recalled to duty at the Air Corps Technical School at Miami Beach.

CHRISTMAS PARTY HELD BY TEACHERS' WIVES

Mrs. V. C. Ketner Entertains at Home: Appropriate Program Presented: Gifts Wrapped for Needy Family.

MRS. V. C. KETNER, 483 Lexington avenue, entertained last evening with the Christmas party for the Teachers' Wives club. Mrs. Harry Scoles served as program chairman for the evening.

After a brief business session, conducted by Mrs. E. N. Cooper, president, the Christmas story from the second chapter of Luke was read by Mrs. Charles McClure. A trio consisting of Mrs. H. D. Bishop, Mrs. Nelson Neff and Mrs. L. E. Rahn sang several selections. Rev. Maurice Fikes, asistant pastor of the Grace Gospel church, presented two violin solos, "Traumerri" and a medley of hymns.

Carol singing was followed by a reading of the story "The Birth of Christ" by Mrs. Scoles. Roll call was answered by 22 members, with their favorite Bible verses. After an exchange of Christmas gifts, packages were wrapped for a needy family in keeping with the club's service project for this year.

The mantel decoration was an illuminated scene of "Nativity" in a set of Christmas greenery and candles. The program was presented from an impromptu stage located in an arched doorway which was flanked on either side by varicolored lighted Christmas trees draped with festoons of silver and blue tinsel and bells.

The committee in charge of this affair included Mrs. W. W. Blauser, chairman, Mrs. H. S. Hostettler, Mrs. George Taylor, Mrs. Neff, Mrs. E. W. Kissel and Mrs. Van Nostrand. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Fred Elder, 626 Arlington avenue on Jan. 20.

Lighted candles and an illuminated Christmas tree, completed the decorations.

Shoppers Buying Luxury Articles In 'Final Fling'

The war has brought about new economies, with the further promise of living by the standard of necessities only. This realization doubtlessly has spurred the Christmas shopper into one more fling of buying all those lovely extravagant bits of adornment for home and dress that may be denied her for a long long time.

In the spirit of the holidays are the new colors in evening accessories. Evening bags are liked in bright satins. Bright red or Kelly green Celanese satin, as well as velvet and crepe, make welcome gifts in bags that are easily ensembled with black dinner gowns. For evening dresses of pastel coloring and war time white there are lovely shades of magenta fuchsia, blues and other pastel colorings in bags of suede, velveteen, doeskin and Celenese taffeta.

A more practical version of the dress-bag comes in black satin, velvet or faille in large flat envelope styles for after six. For ultra extravagance, a cozy fur muff of mink or precious lamb will tempt the pocketbook — this is a big fur season.

Gloves naturally fall into the luxury class, for the colors that have the most distinction come in very fine doeskin and suede. For evening they are particularly lovely in shades of orchid, lime green, fold, French blue or fuchsia. A gift of beautiful gloves will be a joy to any woman and an evening "lift" to any basic dress.

Shawls are probably the newest and most colorful of all the warm accessories and, oddly enough, they involve more than a passing whim when it comes to selecting one for somebody else. Collections include shawls trimmed with contrasting fringe, printed shawls, sequin and embroidered shawls, plaid shawls and brilliant colors, but the shopper choosing a shawl for a gift generally picks one of pastel color, self-trimmed or untrimmed.

Evening sweaters, on the other hand, are more fashionable this year than they were last winter. They may be purchased in any degree of formality from low necks to high necks trimmed with beading, jet, or sequins. Colors are varied, and the sweaters are appropriate to wear with either short length or long dinner skirts. The same is true of the afternoon and evening jackets shown in shocking pink, sapphire blue, fuchsia, emerald green and black, either trimmed or untrimmed.

Prices are moderate for the amount of style and quality offered, and the extra jacket makes a very practical and lavish-looking gift.

Umbrellas in the Christmas group probably offer more style and quality in a practical gift than anything for the money. Popular choices include the plain browns, greens and reds, as well as the bordered and all-over patterned effects.

One interesting combination shown in Celenese taffeta which, by the way, does not split nor crack, has a checked center and plain border, as well as a removable handle. Handles of wood, leather and plastic are styled in smart modern shapes.

After a business session conducted by Mrs. LeRoy McGinty, bridge was played and prizes were won by Mrs. Herman Speas, Mrs. J. J. Kindel and Mrs. Chet Critchfield. Mrs. Vern Hoffman was enrolled in the club.

The committee in charge of the party was comprised of Mrs. Charles Payne, Mrs. Ward Holdridge, Mrs. Kindel, Mrs. Callihan, Mrs. E. Stephan, Mrs. H. J. Linnevers and Mrs. C. A. Banfill. The Jan. 21 meeting will be at the home of Mrs. Speas, 492 Overlook road.

Soldier Wants To Overcome His Jealousy

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I'm in love with a girl I met at a party for service men. She says she loves me also, and we hope to marry after the war. But my trouble is that I am an extremely jealous person. When she talks or dances with other men, I just see red and am very unhappy.

I know I shouldn't be like this, but it seems to be part of my nature. I wouldn't harm a soul and would like to change. Won't you please tell me how I can overcome this fault? I'm now in an Army camp taking the basic training; after that, I expect to go overseas. I do want to go away with a feeling that I needn't worry about her going with someone else.

A SOLDIER.

If I could tell you how to get rid of jealousy, I would be very happy, indeed. There is no way to be completely rid of it, but you have made a fine start, even though I believe you don't realize it. You have recognized it as a fault. Hang on to that idea—that jealousy is doing you harm, that it weakens you, and it is cowardly and unmanly.

The very moment you begin to make some progress in the control of this fault, you will begin to win a Victory.

* * *

Saturday Dates Only.

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I'm a high school girl of 16 and my mother allows me to have dates only on Saturdays. Sometimes she won't let me have any dates at all, and forbids me to go to school dances.

My mother thinks I am wild when I go out, honestly, Miss Fairfax, I'm not. I'll admit I am a little "boy-crazy," but I think I can overcome it if you will tell me how.

Won't you please tell me at what hour a girl of my age should come home from a party when she is out with a young man?

JUNIOR.

Your mother doubtless has her reasons for putting restrictions on you. She knows your characteristics better than any outsider can possibly know them. There's nothing wrong with the instinct that leads you to enjoy the company of boys, but you have got to keep it within reasonable and proper bounds. I'm sure you can do this. You're in school; why not give a little extra attention to your school work?

As to the time you should arrive home from a party or a date, that depends entirely on you and the rules of the house in which you are living. It also depends upon whether you are out alone with the boy, or whether you go to a party among friends. Certainly, your mother is the best judge.

* * *

Mother Will Change.

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I'm 19 years old and have been going "steady" with a young man of 22 for almost two years, but we have to do it secretly. My mother forbids me to date him, although she really has nothing against him. He's educated, doesn't drink or smoke, and has tried many times to make mother like him. She'll be pleasant to him, but when he's out of sight she tells me not to date him.

We want to get married, but if my mother found out we are in love with each other, she would send me away or never let me out of her sight. I'm just an average girl, though Mother seems to think I should marry a king or a prince. I wouldn't trade my boy friend for anyone. WILMA.

At 19 you're still young enough to have a little patience and wait for the tide to turn in the young man's favor. As most of the kings and princes have been toppled off their thrones during the past few years, your mother will see eventually that it becomes more and more difficult daily to find a suitable husband for you. In which case, she will probably agree to let you marry the young man.

* * *

Too Young To Accept Diamonds.

Dear Miss Fairfax:

My boy friend is 19 years old and I've been going with him for the past fifteen months. I'm 16. Although we do not intend to marry until I graduate from high school, he has given me a diamond ring. My mother disapproves but she is willing to take your advice on this matter. UNHAPPY.

Sixteen strikes me as too tender an age at which to accept diamond rings. Your mother disapproves. At the same time if she insists upon you returning the diamond ring to the youth of 19, you'll probably both regard yourselves as martyrs. And martyrs are unpredictable.

You say that you and this boy do not intend to marry until you graduate. There are several sides of the question for the young man to consider. What kind of a job has he? Is he capable of supporting you? And how about the draft? Don't you think that it would be better if, instead of considering marriage at this time, you began to prepare yourself for some sort of job after graduation?

As for that diamond ring, I think the final decision in the matter is up to your mother.

DON'T THROW IT AWAY

Nothing should be thrown away these days. Save your cotton rags and stockings for hooked rugs. Many of the larger stores will show you how to make them, or you can get a book on the subject and work it out for yourself.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

"That is why I am here," I told Philip Veritzen, "to bring you my father's plan for you all to see Georges."

"Will he be wearing that awful disguise?" Olina asked with a shiver.

"Olina!" her mother reproved, as if the Princess were still a child. "You are interrupting Aunt Madge."

"I'm so sorry, Aunt Madge," Olina said prettily, and I smiled and answered her question first.

"No, he is getting rid of his wig and beard this afternoon," I said.

He told me it will be a painful process, for they were virtually glued on, but when you see him he will be Georges as you knew him."

Then I relayed my father's request that the Veritzens give a dinner or after-theater supper for Georges, with Noel, Mary and myself as the other guests.

Veritzens Approve.

"What a wonderful idea!" Olga exclaimed. "Do you not approve my Philip?"

"Of course," he agreed heartily. "But I think an after-theater supper would be better. Unless," turning to me, "your father wishes to take Georges away earlier?"

"No, No," I said quickly. "He has to plan it so that Mr. Milner shall not suspect Georges is here, and some things he wishes you to do for him."

"He has only to name them," Philip Veritzen said, and I hurriedly told him the things my father wished him to do, also that he would like to have Olga tell Milner the expected guest was a young English playwright.

"If you can see my father later in the afternoon, Philip," I said, "and if you, Olga, will stipulate that you wish to have Joe and Henri, and no one else, serve the supper, for they are secretly my father's men, you will have followed all the directions he asked me to give you."

"They won't be hard to follow," Olga said, smiling. "Joe and Henri are my favorite waiters anyway."

Olga Makes Plans.

Her eyes were sparkling, and she rose quickly as I left my chair.

"Oh, but you mustn't go yet!" she protetsted. "I want you to plan the supper with me."

"Olga, Olga," I shook my head at her reprovingly. "I haven't any coals for Newcastle today."

"Isn't Mama delicious!" Olina said. "I'll warrant she has every dish planned already."

"Not every one," her mother laughed, "but I have thought of some of the dishes which Georges liked best in the old days."

"But my dear!" Philip Veritzen exclaimed. "That would involve giving instructions for certain national dishes, which Milner might recognize, and he might suspect that the guest was not an English playwright. Don't you think it would be better to have one or two typically British dishes?"

"Why, of course," his wife said tranquilly. "I already had decided that, and the rest I order will be typically American. But," she added with conscious pride, "I do not have to depend on the hotel for the native dishes I wish to give Georges. I have a well-stocked pantry in this suite, and if you will order the car, Philip, Olina and I will go shopping for perishable ingredients."

"You mustn't go outside the hotel, you know, unless you are heavily guarded," I said in quick alarm.

"Well do we know that, don't we, my Philip?" she said ruefully. "Our walk was almost ruined by our consciousness that stalwart guards were lurking in the background. It was like the old palace days come back again."

"Which you sometimes regret?" Philip Veritzen asked.

HOROSCOPE

For Saturday, Dec. 19.

Although there is promise of some measure of success in major projects according to the lunar aspects, the day may be woefully beset with dangers and difficulties; it may be all but impossible to gain much headway. Both public and personal contacts seem to be imperiled with accident or other untoward events materializing. Take no unnecessary risk.

If It Is Your Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is may be called upon to manage with restraint, common sense and shrewd acumen in order to sidestep some sudden dangers or accidents, especially when traveling. With vigilance and calm movements there is a prospect of attaining some of the desired objectives.

A child born on this day while possessing certain excellent traits and aspirations may be called upon to meet sudden reversals and defeats in life. With extra precaution it may make some success.

Variety of Vitamin Food Items Needed

By BETSY NEWMAN

VITAMIN B has had a lot of publicity as a valuable element in the diet. It is well-deserved publicity, too, because if we get the correct amount of this vitamin it promotes growth, stimulates the appetite, aids in the normal intestinal functions, is an aid to stronger and better nerve control, a preventive and cure of beriberi, and is important in making better use of the carbohydrates we eat, producing more energy. We can get it in cooked oatmeal, lean pork, milk, fresh or evaporated, lean smoked ham, beef liver, baked beans with pork, navy beans, fresh lima beans, Spanish peanuts, peanut butter and yeast.

Stir in sugar, cover and set aside in a cold place until sugar is dissolved. Dissolve gelatin in warm or boiling water, according to directions on wrapper, stirring until it is dissolved, cool and add fruit mixture and celery. Turn into molds and chill until firm. Serve on lettuce with mayonnaise or cooked dressing.

Put into bowl large enough to allow rising, rub over with melted shortening, cover tightly and put in refrigerator. BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

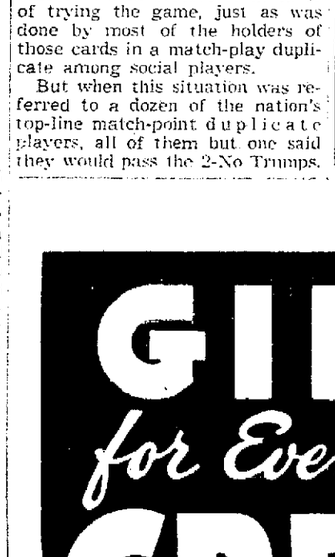
By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

DON'T DISDAIN TRIFLES

Just as the little things count in every phase of life, so do they count in bridge, especially match-point duplicate. There is some excuse to reach out for a slightly improbable game in rubber bridge, as the amount you will gain by success is so great compared to what you lose. But in match-point play, you strive mainly to be accurate, and should much rather stop at 2-No Trumps or 3-Spades than go the rest of the way toward a game which is probably not in the cards.



(Dealer: South. North-South vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East
1 ♥	Pass	1 ♠	Pass
2 ♥	Pass	2 ♠	Pass
2 NT	Pass	3 NT

North would have a very close question on this deal if he were playing rubber bridge, and the overwhelming majority of fine bidders would resolve it in favor of trying the game, just as was done by most of the holders of those cards in a match-play duplicate among social players.

But when this situation was referred to a dozen of the nation's top-line match-point duplicate players, all of them but one said they would pass the 2-No Trumps. The remaining one said he would tell a slight falsehood about his hand by rebidding spades a second time, to 3-Spades. Then, if his partner wanted to try a shift to a No Trump game, it would be his funeral.

At practically every duplicate table, West led the diamond 5. South took the third round and led toward the spades. West came in with the A, cashed his side's third diamond and then led a club to the A, giving the defenders five tricks.

As the cards lie, there is a much better chance for a game at spades than No Trumps.

Tomorrow's Problem.

(Dealer: West. Both sides vulnerable.)

If South plays low from the dummy on West's lead of the spade 9, what should East do in order to defeat the contract of 5-diamonds?

HOLLYWOOD

—By Robbin Coons

HOLLYWOOD—If we get twisted in our dates out here occasionally, consider the chronological confusion that is our town's routine.

For instance, in a single day in Hollywood these events took place.

Coons

The Russian state department gave a formal reception for the American Ambassador (in "Mission to Moscow") coincident with publication of "Jane Eyre" by Charlotte Bronte (in "Devotion"). Simultaneously, the Seawitch, an American 1942 Liberty ship, arrived at an unidentified Russian port, Humphrey Bogart and Alan Hale, ship's officers in "Action in the North Atlantic," walked across the street and, turning time back four years, tried to cut in on the dancing at the ambassador's reception.

Bette Davis, playing a modern American novelist in one picture, visited another stage to chat with Ida Lupino, who plays Emily Bronte, author of "Wuthering Heights." Alexis Smith, recently engaged as Mark Twain's wife, was on a nearby stage for "Thank Your Lucky Stars," a film which will be dated 1943

At other studios Bing Crosby was crooning around the old New Orleans of "Dixie" while across the way Claudette Colbert was sailing as an Army nurse for Bataan in "So Proudly We Hail" and across town Robert Taylor was up to his neck in Japs for "Bataan Patrol"—the same Japs who hadn't yet arrived on Miss Colbert's Bataan.

Across town, too, Alice Faye and John Payne were far from Japs in "Hello, Frisco, Hello"—so far removed in time that they didn't suspect that in a year or so San Francisco would undergo its 1906 earthquake and fire. Betty Grable was cavorting on "Coney Island," far from modern strife, but a gang of brave Norwegians were leading their Nazi invaders to the bughouse for "The Moon Is Down."

Out in the valley they were dancing like mad in a Spanish night club number for "The Hit Parade of 1943," and Don Barry was riding like ditto through a rough western town of the frontier days

Elsewhere Virginia Weidler was trading modern movie stars for autographs for "The Youngest Profession" and Commandos were foiling Nazis for "Assignment in Brittany" while soldiers and sailors flocked to a cinematic "Stage Door Canteen" and Anna Lee defied the Gestapo in old Czechoslovakia for "Unconquered"

Thus through time and space the cameras clicked. But several hundreds of extras working in these and other pictures were not confused. They punched the clock and knew what time it was.

OHIOANS WILL BACK WAR IN NEW CONGRESS

All 23 Members Pledge Help as They Get Acquainted on Capitol Hill.

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Ohio representatives in the 78th congress convening next month will take their seats ready to forget partisanship when it comes to world affairs.

All 23 members, 20 of them Republicans, have pledged themselves to help carry on total war for total defeat of the Axis as quickly as possible, hoping that the victory will be achieved during the next two years.

Seven Ohioans will be members of congress for the first time, but they probably will know their way around Capitol Hill.

Acting ac coach, Rep Thomas A. Jenkins, dean of Buckeye Republicans in the house, helped the newcomers by making his office available for their use. He showed them around and introduced them to future colleagues.

One congressman-elect from the Buckeye state needed no coaching. Earl R Lewis of St. Clairsville, is an experienced legislator by virtue of previous experience in the house and in the state legislature.

Like other members-elect, Lewis emphasized in interviews that his primary purpose during the next two years would be to co-operate fully in the war program, although he suggested that congress should undertake as well to plan for solution of post-war problems.

Reflecting the sentiment of other Ohioans, representative-elect Henderson H. Carson of Canton declared that every action of congress should be intended to speed victory.

Besides Carson, the Republicans elected to congress for the first time are Walter E Brehm of Logan, Harry P. Jeffrey of Dayton, Homer Rayney of Toledo, Edward O. McCowen of Portsmouth, and Alvin F. Weichel of Sandusky.

The seventh newcomer is a Democrat, Michael A Feighan of Cleveland. The two re-elected Democrats are Robert Crosser of Cleveland and Michael Kirwan of Youngstown.

Members of Ohio's 37th Send Holiday Messages to Homes

COLUMBUS—(AP)—Members of the 37th division—"too busy right now" to come home for the holidays—found a way to wish their friends and relatives in Ohio a Merry Christmas.

Lieut. Raphael J. Sicilian of Columbus, probably the only man in the outfit home for Christmas, brought these messages from a South Pacific island where the Ohioans are stationed

Maj. Gen. Robert S. Beightler, division comander, told Sicilian as the lieutenant left for the United States, "There's one thing we want you to do for us. Tell all our friends and relatives 'hello' for us."

Sicilian, home for treatment of an injury suffered at the island base, reported the 37th in excellent physical and mental condition. The soldiers still welcome above all a letter from home, he added.

STRIKE TIES UP CANTON PAPER

Repository Misses Going To Press Today For First Time In 127 Years.

(By Associated Press)

CANTON—For the first time in its 127-year history, the Repository—Canton's only daily newspaper—will not go to press today.

This was announced by the owner, Brush-Moore Newspapers, Inc., after composing room employes affiliated with the Canton Typographical union last night voted to strike in an effort to enforce demands for pay increases.

The management said the strike action "apparently comes as a consequence of a breakdown in collective bargaining processes between a closed shop Typographical union and this newspaper under demands for wage increases."

The dispute was referred to the war labor board at Washington, John D. Ramdan, Brush-Moore's executive editor, reported.

Thomas A Holland of Indianapolis, vice president of the International Typographical union, asserted the newspaper's 73 compositors had sought raises "commensurate with the increased cost of living" in negotiations for a new contract to replace an agreement which expired last Oct. 1.

A breakdown in negotiations promoted the strike, Holland added.

The management of the Repository, which publishes each afternoon during the week and Sunday mornings, asserted the union last spring was granted a raise bringing the scale to $52 a week for day workers and $55.75 for night employes.

Joseph K. Vodrey, Repository business manager, said the union demanded 11-cent hourly increases in both day and night shift rates.

Vodrey said the Repository proposed that a settlement be attempted through WLB arbitration but the union refused.

SETS MURDER TRIAL

COLUMBUS — (NS) — County Prosecutor Ralph J. Bartlett set Feb. 23 for the jury trial in criminal court of Clem Thomas, 24, Columbus Negro. Thomas was indicted for first degree murder in the slaying of Robert Martin, 39, and Louise Clark, 19, both Negroes, on Aug. 29.

COLONEL'S DAUGHTER PREPARES TO TELL HER STORY OF MURDER

(By Associated Press)

BISBEE, Ariz — The dramatic climax of Margaret Herlihy's murder trial came today as she prepared to relate from the witness stand her story of the slaying of her secret husband, Capt. David D. Carr.

From the time of her arrest, soon after the Fort Huachuca anti-tank officer was found dying from two bullet wounds, the attractive red-haired defendant admitted shooting him, declaring he beat her and she feared for her life. But the complete story of the fatal quarrel between 21-year-old Margaret and Carr remained to be told.

Captain Carr died early the morning of August 15, a short time after police found him lying on a bedroom floor in the home of the girl's parents, Lt. Col. and Mrs. E. G. Herlihy, at Douglas, 24 miles east of here.

In a sensational opening statement yesterday, Defense Attorney W. E. Polley declared the 27-year-old officer had been twice married, claimed a third woman as his wife, never had been divorced, and was of a brutal and immoral nature.

"The pattern of Carr's life became so complex as to drive all reason from any man," Polley contended

He pictured the officer as harried by demands from Alice Lippolt and Ruth Duke Carr that he make some provision for them, and asserted Carr "tried to get rid of his third wife, Ruth Duke Carr, but couldn't because she was pregnant by him."

Pre-Christmas bells won't be pealing for him as he sits and reads in his room at 238½ North Main street, Tom Pealing told Patrolmen Don Mitchell and John Steel last night. On his return home from work about 9 p. m. Thursday Pealing, as was his custom, hastened to a stand to tune in his radio but there was no dial. In fact, there wasn't any radio, just loose connections where his music-maker once had set. The patrolmen found the shank of a skeleton key broken off in the room's door lock.

WICKARD SETS 7-DAY RATION OF 35 OUNCES

Per Capita Allowance Likely To Be Cut Below 2 Pounds After Jan. 1, Report.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON — Agriculture department officials said today that the order reducing per capita consumption of meat to 35 ounces a week was only a preliminary move, and that further cuts may bring consumption to less than two pounds a week after the first of the year

A rising demand for meat for the armed forces and lend-lease shipments caused Food Administrator Claude R. Wickard to order a 12½ per cent reduction in civilian deliveries for the first quarter of 1943

Left untouched by the order issued by Price Administrator Leon Henderson at Wickard's direction, were deliveries of beef, which provides about 40 per cent of the meat supply. Officials said that beef also would be restricted soon and new cuts added to those already made in deliveries of pork, mutton, lamb and veal

Wickard said the order would cut the average per capita civilian consumption from the present 2½ pounds a week to two pounds three ounces. The coming restrictions would bring the average below two pounds before formal meat rationing goes into effect at a date still undecided.

Other action on meat problems included:

1. Henderson authorized packers to begin deliveries of 1943 meat quotas Dec. 20 to meet severe shortages in several localities where booming war populations have raised enormous demands.

2. The OPA prepared new retail price regulations for poultry which would raise prices only slightly, if at all, over present levels The order, expected within a few days, will affect all poultry except turkeys, which are now under price regulation, and will fix prices at net costs plus fixed margins.

The delivery restriction order cut pork supplies for the first quarter of 1943 to 6⅔ per cent below the last quarter of 1942; mutton and lamb 21 per cent and veal 30 per cent.
